Jobless lines mirror dismal British scene

LONDON (UPI) — Thousands of Britons lined up for unemployment benefits today in a scene reminiscent of the 1930s depression. Housewives cut their food budgets and economists predicted the situation could only grow worse.

It marked the first full impact of Britain's three-day work week and even the weather added to the gloom felt throughout this energy-starved country.

With the skies shrouded in clouds, the temperature dropped to near freezing. Out-of-work men stomped their feet to keep warm in lines ringing government employment offices.

A government spokesman said more than one out of every five persons in this nation of 56 million people would pass through the lines within the next week.

The crisis was provoked by a government order restricting factories to a three-day week to conserve coal supplies. Stocks of coal, the major source of electricity, have been sharply reduced by a coal miner's ban on overtime.

Many factories responded by closing altogether, throwing thousands of men out of work. Others told employees to expect only 60 per cent of their normal pay this week.

Robert Littman, a 36-year-old upholsterer, was one of the men who lost his job.

"When I showed up for work, they told me I might as well not bother this week," he said.

As he waited for his first unemployment check, government officials and the leaders of the coal miners gathered today for a new round of talks in the dispute.

Prime Minister Edward Heath urged the miners to accept a 16.5 per cent pay boost and return to work.

"There can be no justification for the economic damage which the coal miners' action is inflicting on the economy," he said in a letter to Anthony Wedgewood Benn, the trade and industry spokesman for the opposition Labor party.

Holiday traffic deaths - 446 - are lowest since '62

By United Press International

Traffic deaths over the four-day New Year's Holiday were the lowest for a similar period since 1962 and the National Safety Council said today the energy crisis probably was the biggest factor.

A final count by United Press International for the holiday showed 446 persons lost their lives on the nation's highways.

California led all states in traffic deaths with 49, followed by Texas 38, New York 22 and Michigan, Georgia and Louisiana, 19 each.

The council, taking into consideration reduced travel, estimated 470 to 570 would die in the period which began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and extended to midnight Tuesday.

Council statistics in previous years showed that 388 persons died in traffic accidents in 1962, a four-day New Year's holiday, and 481 were killed in 1969, the last four-day New Year's. The 1973-74 toll was the least for New Year's since 1968 when 170 persons died during a one-day holiday.

A council spokesman said "very cold weather" in the Midwest probably was a factor "but what primarily comes to mind is the gas shortage."

He said, "Many gas stations were closed down and people even with full tanks were reluctant to drive. The reduction in availability probably acted to limit travel and consequently cut the fatalities."

Energy tip

Keep lid on pan while cooking

Keep pans covered while cooking and fit the flame to the size of the pan. Turn flame down after cooking starts.

Motorists heeding lower speed limit

Freeway: it's 'different world'

By PAT SPENCER
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — Getting valley freeway drivers to slow down and observe the new 55-mile-an-hour speed limit has been no problem for highway patrolmen.

In fact, reports Capt. W. C. Jones, area commander of the Claremont CHP office, fewer speeding tickets were issued within the last 24 hours than were issued in a similar period last year.

Jones said the freeways are a "different world" with less lane changing and less tailgating since the lower speed limit went into effect midnight Monday.

Jones said he is pleased that motorists generally are heeding the new limit.

In talking with motorists, Jones found drivers liked the slower speeds.

As one woman put it: "It's hard to get used to for about the first hour, but then you enjoy it."

Motorists are also beginning to enjoy the higher gas mileages that are a major benefit of the new speed law, he said.

Normally, a major traffic law revision carries with it a 30-day grace period before concerted enforcement begins. But due to widespread publicity, the highway patrol began enforcing the lower speed limit immediately.

"There's been a genuine acceptance of the new law by the motoring public," Jones said. He said that in other areas of Los Angeles highway patrolmen were also experiencing no major problems with speed limit enforcement.

Jones said the Pomona area experienced a lower accident rate and no fatalities over the New Year's weekend, but said it was too early to tell if the lower speed limit had any appreciable effect on the accident rate.

Drunk driving arrests did increase over last year, Jones said. A total of 43 arrests were made between Friday evening and midnight Tuesday as opposed to only 32 in the same period last year.

Jones said he believes the good record turned in by drivers so far will continue during the 18 months the lower speeds will be in effect.

ANOTHER WINNER FOR CAL POLY

The float from Cal Poly University of Pomona, which won the Theme Prize in the 85th annual Tournament of Roses parade, moves down Colorado Boulevard in Pasadena on New Year's Day.

Murder, beatings, 225 arrests mar Pasadena parade

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The annual Tournament of Roses Parade Tuesday was marred by 225 arrests, a rock-throwing melee, a savage beating and the apparently unprovoked killing of a passing stranger by a street gang.

An estimated 1.5 million people turned out along the 3.5 mile route, many camping overnight.

Dennis Allen, 22, of Canoga Park, Calif., was knifed to death and his brother, Raymond, 31, was hospitalized in serious condition with wounds.

Police arrested 16 juveniles and three young adults, identifying them as members of a Pasadena youth gang. Officers said the Allen brothers were passing by the group on a street corner when the gang set on them with knives.

James Freeman, 16, of Glendale, Calif., was hospitalized in critical condition with a crushed skull. He was pronounced dead on arrival at an emergency center, but paramedics got him breathing again.

Freeman was stomped and clubbed on the head by three men, police said, in what apparently was another case of an unprovoked attack.

Most of the arrests were made Monday night and early Tuesday by a force of 1,500 police and sheriff's deputies who kept watch on the gathering crowd. The charges included assault, attempted burglary, disturbing the peace and smoking marijuana.

Fifty arrests were made near Pasadena City College, a traditional trouble spot. A group of young people hurled rocks and bottles at patrolling officers. Two deputies and one policeman received minor injuries.

An estimated 110 million persons saw the telecast of the two hour parade.

The city of St. Louis won the sweepstakes prize for its float "Happiness Is a Snowflake," bedecked with 10,000 flowers and the grand prize for the best commercial float went to Eastman Kodak's "Happiness is Love."

Cal Poly's float wins parade 'Theme Prize'

PASADENA — Cal Poly universities at Pomona and San Luis Obispo, the City of St. Louis and the Eastman Kodak Co. were winners of major awards in the 85th annual New Year's Day Tournament of Roses parade, with the theme "Happiness Is..."

Cal Poly's 26th annual float entry, "Happiness Is Finding a Friend," depicted a small girl sitting on a tree stump serving tea to a dragon with scales and wings of green leaves.

The float, built by students from the Pomona and SLO universities, won the Theme Prize. The same trophy was won by the two campuses in 1959 and 1957.

The 1973 float will be on display at Cal Poly Pomona's quad on Thursday and Friday.

St. Louis' entry won the Sweepstakes Prize for the most beautiful float in the noncommercial category.

The float, "Happiness Is... A Snowflake," showed two skaters gliding across a pond of ice in a wintry tableau featuring 10,000 white roses.

Grand Prize, for the most beautiful float in the commercial competition, went to Eastman Kodak for its entry, "Happiness Is... Love." Two cupids held a basket of cascading flowers amid seven fountains of water coordinated with stereophonic music.

Body of young man found hanging from a tree in S.D.

SAN DIMAS — Sheriff's investigators are seeking to learn the identity of a teen-ager or young male adult whose body was discovered hanging by a rope from a tree in a vacant field north of Arrow Highway and west of the 210 Freeway on New Year's Eve.

Andrew Frederick Hegel, 15, led sheriff's deputies to the field.

Deputies said that the body, clad in a T-shirt, blue Levis, and tennis shoes, appeared to have been hanging "for a long time."

Coroner's deputies have been hampered in their attempt to identify the body because of decay.

Hegel told deputies he was hiking through the field when he discovered the body.

Kahane loses bid for Israeli seat

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Rabbi Meir Kahane, leader of the militant Jewish Defense League (JDL), failed in a bid for a seat in the Israeli parliament, according to computer projections today.

The computer reports indicated the American-born Kahane did not get the required one per cent of the vote needed for a seat in the 120-member Knesset.

Kahane has been arrested several times on charges of disturbing the peace and conspiracy to smuggle arms out of the country since his arrival in Israel in 1972. If elected, he would have been immune from prosecution.

State traffic deaths drop slightly in '73

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Highway Patrol has reported provisionally that 4,874 persons died in vehicle accidents in the state in 1973.

The figure was 2.5 per cent less than in 1972, but generally consistent with the trend of previous years.

Irate owner charges $1 a swing to demolish auto, buy bicycle

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — "It's been dying a slow death since the day I bought it and I think the only merciful thing to do is put it out of its misery," Roger Sweitzer said, growling at his troublesome 1971 Pinto car and hefting a sledgehammer.

With that, Sweitzer began demolishing the auto Tuesday, determined to beat it to death to avenge a series of problems — and embarrass its maker, the Ford Motor Company.

The place of execution: A site just outside a Ford plant here. Sweitzer thinks his car began life there, so he took it home to die.

"I've had nothing but problems with it from the day I bought it," and Ford officials have ignored his letters of complaint for two years, he said.

High today will be about 55, matching Tuesday. Low tonight will be 32. Low this morning was 31. Thursday's high will be about 60, the weatherman said.

The cold weather followed a storm which New Year's Eve brought rainfall to Pomona Valley and two inches of new snow to the mountain tops, the first snowfall since Thanksgiving.

Rainfall was heaviest near the mountains. Padua Hills recorded .49 inch, while only .14 inch was reported in Chino.

About 50 persons joined in the execution, wielding axes, sledgehammers, crowbars and clubs. Most of them were members of the Outraged Consumers Action Committee. Among them was the committee chairman, Eddie Campson. Two years ago, Campson ended his woes with a Lincoln Continental by setting fire to it.

Ford executives were invited to attend. So far as Sweitzer knows, none did. He said one Ford executive answered protests by asking: "What do you want for $3,000?"

It took the crowd about an hour to reduce the Pinto to a pile of junk.

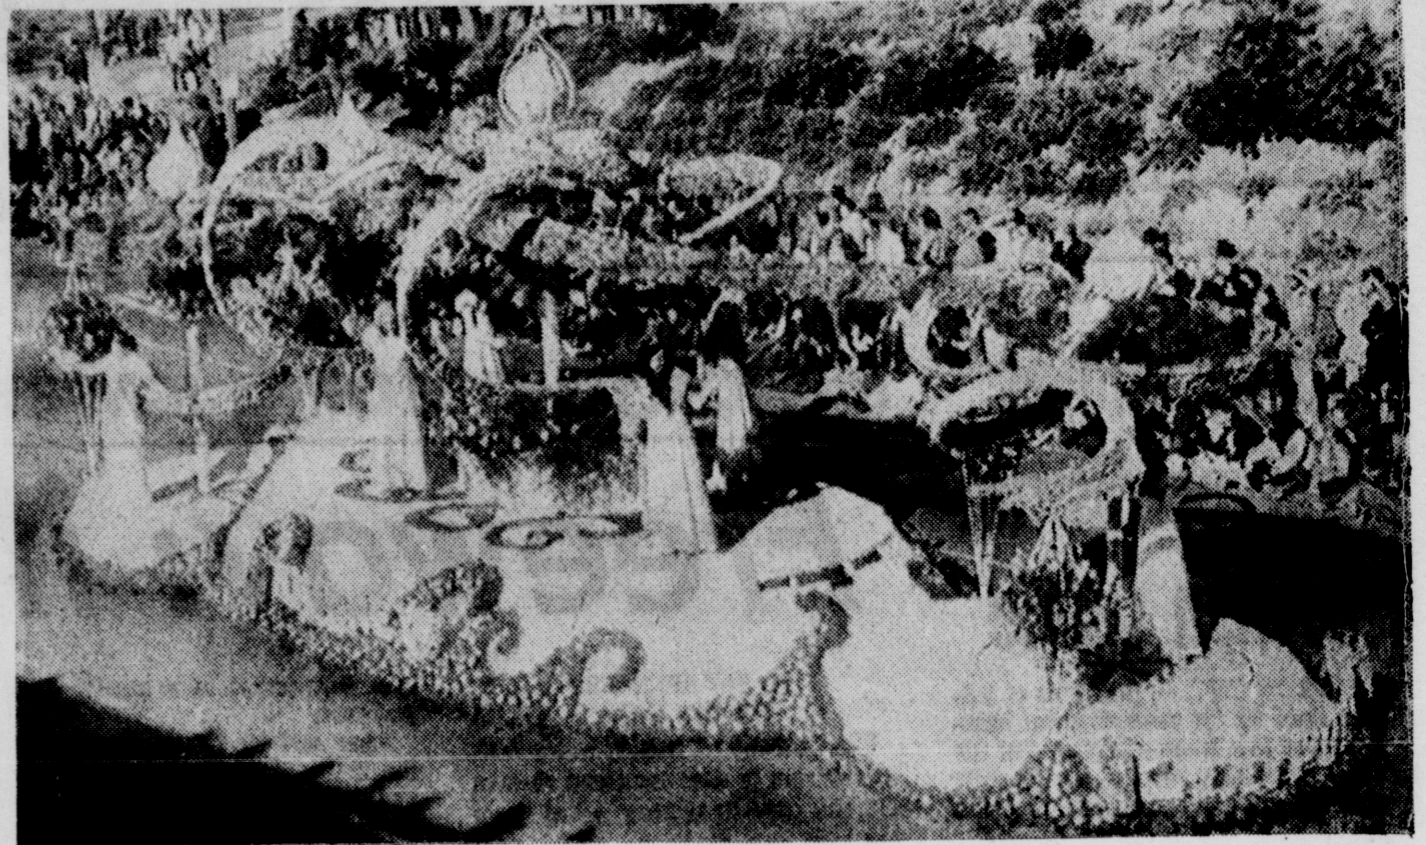

Sweitzer is not without transportation however. He charged his fellow executioners $1 a swing—with the money going to buy a bicycle.

Major shakeup alters China's military stance

HONG KONG (UPI) — China has made the biggest shakeup of its military command in more than five years, it was disclosed today.

But the posts of defense minister and chief of the general staff, vacant since September, 1971, apparently are still unfilled.

The military shakeup, which mainly involved transfers of powerful regional commanders, was disclosed in a routine dispatch of the official New China News Agency (NCNA) on attendance of top military men at New Year's Day functions in Peking and provincial cities where major military commands are headquartered.

The NCNA dispatch listed new command positions for more than two dozen key commanders, including a vice chairman of the Communist party Central Committee and a half-dozen members of the committee's powerful 25-member politburo.

Such command changes are almost always disclosed in this casual fashion:

Formal announcements are rarely made.

The most important man involved in the transfers was Li Teh-sheng, who was elected one of five vice chairmen of the party at its 10th national congress last August.

He was identified as "Commander of the Shengyang Units of the People's Liberation Army (PLA)." Previously, he was the army's top political commissar and chief of the Anhwei Military District.

China has 13 military regions. Under these are more numerous military districts.

Shenyang, capital of Liaoning Province, is the headquarters for what probably is the most important of all the military regions at present. This is in the northeast, where the largest concentration of combat troops is located and where the most serious border clashes with the Soviet Union have occurred.

The military reshuffle appears to have strengthened the position of Premier Chou En-lai who has recently been under pressure from political opponents, China experts said today.

The reshuffle, said to be the biggest since the ouster of former defense minister Lin Biao, also underscored the growing importance Chairman Mao Tse-tung's regime is attaching to the strengthening of the uneasy Sino-Soviet border.

Experts said it appears that Chou has emerged considerably strengthened, and that his policy of improving relations with the United States and the rest of the world except the Soviet Union has received a new boost.

First assessments of the military reshuffle in China suggested also that they are part of the preparations for the projected fourth National People's Congress. The 10th Communist party Congress was held in Peking last August.

British arrest U.S. woman, 18, in plot by Arabs

LONDON (UPI) — An 18-year-old American woman arrested at Heathrow Airport may have been the courier for a band of Arab gunmen being sent to London to kill prominent Jews, police sources said.

The sources broached the theory as the government ordered maximum alert at airports throughout the country in response to reports that more than 30 Arab gunmen were en route to Britain.

All passengers traveling on Arab passports were being closely watched and searched if they behaved suspiciously, a police spokesman said. Diplomatic bags arriving from the Middle East were also scrutinized.

The American woman, whose identity has been withheld by police, was arrested Saturday after arriving in London on a flight from Los Angeles.

Customs officials said they found five pistols and 150 rounds of ammunition hidden in a false bottom of her suitcase.

She was allowed to leave the terminal, but was arrested when she stopped outside to talk to a Moroccan. He was also detained along with a man from Pakistan, police said.

Police sources said counter-espionage officers also arrested the American woman's brother when he arrived on a flight from the United States Thursday.

They said both are believed to have links with Moroccans living in the United States.

The sources said a second Arab has also been detained, bringing the total to five and that other arrests are expected.

The sources said several Arabs with suspicious documents entered Britain during the Christmas holidays amid indications that an Arab arms center was being created in London for European operations.

Election results could hamper peace settlement

Political tug-of-war for Israel

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The major coalition partner in Prime Minister Golda Meir's Labor alignment emerged today as the biggest obstacle in the way of forming a new government, political leaders said. It could alter Israel's negotiating stance with the Arabs at Geneva.

Demands on the Labor alignment by the National Religious Party not to surrender the occupied West Bank of Jordan in any peace settlement is the hardest problem Mrs. Meir will have to solve, said Yoram Peri, spokesman for her Labor Party.

"I'm afraid well have to pay a price to the National Religious Party," Peri said. "The negotiations to form a coalition will take some weeks, but they won't affect the military talks at Geneva. They will affect the next step, but that won't be done so quickly."

Returns thus far indicated that Mrs. Meir's party had lost six of its 57 seats in Parliament and the right-wing Likud would gain six for a total of 38. The National Religious Party dropped one seat to 11. Returns from soldiers voting at the front are not expected before next weekend, but observers said that since it was a citizen army the voting was expected to be along lines already reported.

The Middle East peace conference is expected to devote its attention to peace negotiations once the troop disengagement talks between Israel and Egypt are completed.

Tourism Minister Moshe Kol said the Religious Party may change its mind about the West Bank once concrete proposals for peace are made at Geneva. But he said its demands on religious versus secular affairs may cause his own party to drop out of the coalition.

The preliminary vote count indicated increased strength for hard-line members of Prime Minister Golda Meir's ruling Labor party as well as the center-right Likud bloc advocating keeping almost all occupied Arab territory.

The doves in Mrs. Meir's party, including Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, have advocated giving back much of the Arab territory seized in the 1967 Middle East war and have shown a desire to negotiate the return of the West Bank.

"Sapir and the other doves are crying today," a source in Defense Minister Moshe Dayan's hawkish faction within the Labor party said as the vote totals mounted.

Dayan, who has taken a harder line on the peace negotiations than the rest of Mrs. Meir's cabinet, was the target of a pre-election ouster move by members of his own party.

Redlands man fills two county roles

SAN BERNARDINO — Albert R. Reid of Redlands has been appointed administrative services officer for the county's environmental improvement agency and assistant executive officer to the Local Agency Formation Commission.

He had previously served with the Lockheed Propulsion Co. in a variety of planning and management positions.

The dove wing of the party, the source said, interpreted the election results as thwarting their move to remove Dayan and swing the party to their position.

Likud leader Menahem Begin, a former Israeli guerrilla fighter, has said none of the captured territories should be returned until the Arabs outline their peace intentions toward Israel and put them into practice. This, he says, could take more than two years.

Likud and its star candidate, October war hero Maj. Gen. Ariel Sharon, won a projected increase of six seats in the Knesset for a total of 38. Labor appeared to have lost six dropping to 51.

"Now there is a clear majority against any plan to repatriation the land of Israel," Begin said after the vote.

Skinnyies outweigh the fats in the demand for business executives

DETROIT (UPI) — Fat bosses have skinny wallets, at least when compared to their skinny counterparts, according to a survey by a New York-based firm.

The Robert Half Personnel Agencies, in a survey of 15,000 executives, concluded the skinnier you are, the more money you're likely to make in leadership roles.

"Some fat people pay a penalty of $1,000 a pound," said Robert Half, whose agency conducted the poll in 15 cities by randomly selecting 1,000 of the company's clients and checking their height, weight and salaries.

The results were then checked against insurance industry charts. Persons weighing 10 per cent more than the chart figures were ruled overweight.

Of 1,500 executives who earned between $25,000 and $45,000, the survey showed only 9 per cent were more than 10 pounds overweight.

But of 13,500 executives paid between $10,000 and $20,000, the survey showed nearly 40 per cent were more than 10 pounds overweight.

"By exploiting the overweight, too many American companies are literally living off the fat of the land," said Half.

He added that his company has received thousands of requests from employers for "thin" men and women, but has received only one request in 25 years for a "plump" executive.

"And that request came from a company that makes clothing for overweight men," Half said. "The overweight have become America's largest, least protected minority."

7 of 10 swimmers finish Bay race

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Ten foolhardy swimmers jumped into San Francisco Bay near Alcatraz Island and swam a mile in the choppy, 50-degree waters Tuesday in the annual Alcatraz to San Francisco New Year's Day swimming race.

Seven of the swimmers finished the race. The other three were picked up by accompanying boats when the tides got the better of them. One said the swim was "like being in a washing machine."

The event was sponsored by the Dolphin Club and the South End Club, swimming and boating groups.

George Farnsworth, 58, finished in first place with a time of 52 minutes 14 seconds.

Bill Norton, 30, was second in 53 minutes 37 seconds, and Frank Coghlan, 49, was third in a time of 62 minutes 27 seconds.

The appointment carries no special duties. It is a personal honor that has been given to serving officers in the royal family since mid-Victorian times.

Famed attorney jailed in crash

HOUSTON (UPI) — Defense lawyer Percy Foreman, 71, was jailed Monday night on drunk driving charges after he was in a traffic accident. He also was charged with driving without an operator's license.

Arrested at 7 p.m., Foreman was put in jail and released at 11:40 p.m. when he posted $400 bond. Police said he refused to take blood, urine or breath tests.

Police said Foreman's 1971 Cadillac hit the rear of another car. Foreman said the car in front of him stopped suddenly because of traffic congestion. Nobody was hurt.

Foreman said it was his first time in jail.

"I haven't been drunk since I was 15," Foreman said.

Chiang calls for stronger Taiwan

TAIPEI (UPI) — President Chiang Kai-shek called Tuesday for a better international awareness that a stronger Taiwan is a "blessing to the free world."

In a New Year's day message, read at a mass rally celebrating the 63rd anniversary of the inauguration of the Nationalist Chinese government, Chiang said the free world would suffer if Taiwan does not remain free and strong.

"Everybody understands," Chiang said, "that the strengthening of the power of the government and people of the Republic of China is a blessing to the free world, and that in the absence of this power the free world will suffer."

French magazine honors Kissinger

PARIS (UPI) — The news magazine Le Point has named Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as its man of the Year for 1973.

"That Henry Kissinger has been the man of this strange year, no one can doubt," Le Point said. "During these 12 months he has traveled 193,000 kilometers (120,000 miles), or approximately five times around the earth."

"Kissinger is not only the man of the year; he is also the principal personage of this uncertain period which has seen the United States withdraw into its shell. He was able to use this apparent retreat as the essential weapon of his diplomacy."

Italian airliner crash is probed

TURIN, Italy (UPI) — Government investigators examined the wreckage of an Italian jetliner today to determine whether instrument failure or pilot error led to the death of 38 persons in a New Year's Day crash.

The Itavia Airline plane, carrying 42 persons, smashed into a dairy farm complex near Turin's airport during an attempt to land in heavy fog after a flight from the central Italian city of Bologna.

Authorities said the four survivors were thrown clear of the plane and taken to a Turin hospital.

Evans said his father-in-law was standing in the alley, with a .38-cal. revolver in his hand.

"I don't like you," Evans quoted Wolf as saying. Evans said that the man shot through the windshield, "and hit me on the chin."

The bullet hit him on the left side of the chin, traveled along the jawbone, and became lodged above the collarbone.

Evans drove to the hospital. Wolf was arrested at his apartment. A .38 caliber revolver was found in a box in the apartment.

HEATING THE AIR—Flames roar into the freezing sky at Prairie du Rocher, Ill., as workers seek to shut off a 22-inch natural gas transmission line that exploded late Tuesday night.

At least 7,000 in the area were left without heat in the blast, which injured no one but could be seen 50 miles off in St. Louis, Mo.

It's love? Bonnie Prince Charlie grins

LONDON (UPI) — Prince Charles, the heir to the throne, managed a grin today when he saw a newspaper headline "It's Love," referring to his friendship with Lady Jane Wellesley, and then flew off to Singapore to join his ship.

The headline was one of a number of press articles suggesting the 25-year-old Prince and the 24-year-old daughter of the Duke of Wellington are more than just good friends.

The Sun newspaper said flatly in a front page report of the Royal New Year's Eve party at Sandringham, in which the couple danced together most of the night, that they are in love and there may be a spring betrothal.

The Prince winds up his naval career in June, although Buckingham Palace sources say he was recently trying to extend it for a year or so — which would make an early engagement improbable.

Charles left from a military air base at what he described as "a fiendish time of day" — cold and not yet full daylight — while Lady Jane answered the doorbell at her little house in the Fulham district of London to accept a special delivery letter.

"I had a lovely time," was all she would say about her Sandringham visit.

Despite the obviously close relationship between the two not everyone at the palace is convinced it will lead to marriage. They point out that Charles is also very friendly with two other highly eligible girls — Lady Cecil Kerr, daughter of the Marquess of Lothian, a beautiful brunette, and Lady Leonora Grosvenor, tall blonde daughter of the very rich Duke of Westminster.

But those who believe it is Lady Jane have tradition on their side. An invitation to a major family function at the royal private home at Sandringham usually means a serious romance.

Boy, hit by car, reported okay

POMONA — A 1-year-old boy is reported in good condition today at Pomona Valley Community Hospital after being struck by a car near his home Monday afternoon.

George Warren Spotville, 986 Vassar St., ran into the street and was struck by a car driven by Robert Charles Richardson, 2425 Alder St., police reported.

Woman flees suspected rapist during traffic stop

ONTARIO — A woman passenger in a car stopped for a traffic violation at Holt Boulevard and Bon View Avenue told police the driver had kidnapped and raped her in the Pomona area early Tuesday morning. The driver was arrested, police reported.

Ontario Police Officer Jess Morelson said he observed the car make an illegal right turn. Morelson said the car stopped on his command and a woman jumped out of the front seat and ran over to him.

The 53-year-old Pomona woman told Morelson that the driver of the car had kidnapped her at Garey Avenue and Mission Boulevard in Pomona earlier by forcing himself into her vehicle that was stopped at the intersection. She said the man threatened her and told her to drive a short distance. She said she stopped the car and the man pushed her aside and got behind the wheel. She said he drove to an isolated area near Philadelphia Boulevard and Reservoir Avenue and raped her in the car.

Morelson said he observed the woman's clothing strewn about the car and ordered the driver, identified as Torrez Rafael Aldana, 36, of 127 N. Third Ave., Upland, out of the car. Aldana was arrested on suspicion of kidnapping and rape and booked in the West End Jail.

The woman told Morelson at the time of the traffic stop that the suspect was driving her to Upland.

Icy Baldy road blamed for accident that hurt five

MT. BALDY — Five persons received minor injuries Tuesday afternoon when their car slid into the rear of a snowplow on icy Mt. Baldy Road.

Treated for cuts and abrasions at Pomona Valley Community Hospital were the driver, Jesse Raymond Alcantar, 25, of El Monte; and his passengers, Raymond J. Prieto and Angela Vera Prieto, both of Rosemead; Diana M. Hernandez and Robert Alcantar, both of El Monte.

Highway patrolmen reported Alcantar had left the ski lift area parking lot at about 5:30 p.m. and was descending the road at a moderate rate of speed when he came upon the snowplow. Ice and snow on the road caused him to slide into the rear of the plow.

Plow driver, Charles Fagg, 41, of Alta Loma and two other passengers in Alcantar's car were uninjured.

I.Q. of 145 And A Poor Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address, and zip code to: Memory Studies, 555 E. Lange St., Dept. 510-70, Mundelein, Ill. 60060. A postcard will do.

Man hurt as car hits him, leaves scene

MONTCLAIR — Montclair police this morning are seeking the driver of a yellow Pinto who struck and injured a pedestrian hitchhiking on Holt Boulevard near Ramona Avenue Tuesday morning.

Henry Fred Goodhart, 54, of 3912 E. Mission Blvd., Pomona, was treated for minor injuries at Doctors Hospital. He was later released.

Goodhart told police that he was walking on Holt Boulevard about 1:57 a.m. when he turned around to hitchhike and a yellow Pinto car struck him. Goodhart was knocked to the ground and the driver of the car did not stop, police said.

Pistol-wielding man holds up Etiwanda store

ETIWANDA — A man armed with a long-barreled revolver robbed a clerk at the Circle K Market, 12854 Foothill Blvd., of a small amount of cash Tuesday night, sheriff's deputies reported.

The clerk, Dorothy Puffer, told deputies that a man, described as a Caucasian, 25 to 30, with blond hair and blue eyes wearing a Levi jacket, walked into the store about 8:40 p.m. She said when other customers left the store he approached her, displayed a long-barreled revolver and ordered her to hand over the cash from the register.

Deputies said the robber escaped on foot.

Fire truck, auto collide; no one hurt in mishap

UPLAND — An Upland Fire Department truck returning to its station was damaged Tuesday when it collided with a car while making a right turn onto Foothill Boulevard from Euclid Avenue, police reported.

Police said both the fire truck driven by Donald Victor Johnson, 32, of Upland and the car driven by Michael Joseph Carlson, 27, of 686 Lincoln Avenue Pomona were making right turns onto Foothill Boulevard when the collision occurred. Police said the fire truck sideswiped the car. The right side of the fire truck and the left side of the car were damaged.

Police said the accident is under investigation.

Jaworski reports

More indictments?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, in a report on the progress of the special prosecution force established last June, has indicated the continuing probe may soon result in many new charges.

Meanwhile, Fred Thompson, minority counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee, said he feels the panel may have to ask the Senate to extend the Feb. 28 deadline for finishing its related but separate investigation.

Thus far 17 persons have pleaded guilty and one "no contest" to Watergate-related crimes; two others have been convicted; six are awaiting trial.

"Although investigations in various areas within the Special Prosecutor's jurisdiction are continuing, including the review of White House files," Jaworski said. "The presentation of evidence to the grand juries has progressed to the point that in January and February these bodies will be prepared to consider the matter of returning indictments in a substantial number of major involvements."

Jaworski, who succeeded the fired Archibald Cox in November, did not elaborate.

The scandal began June 17, 1972, with the bugging arrests of five men at the Democratic National Committee headquarters at the Watergate complex here.

Thompson, at home in Nashville, Tenn., said he didn't "see any way in the world we can finish the thing by Feb. 28. I feel like they will have to go back to the Senate and ask for an extension of time."

Thompson said the committee must decide the "relative significance" of matters the staff is pursuing

Trains stall, motorists' tanks run dry

New Year's travelers find it rough going

By United Press International

More than 900 persons spent a chilly New Year's Day stranded aboard Amtrak trains. One stalled at Galesburg, Ill., another at Klamath Falls, Ore., and a third at Jefferson City, Mo.

Temperatures in the out-of-way stops were near or below zero.

Passengers in all three trains either spent cold nights on railroad cars or huddled in depots, munching hamburgers.

At Jefferson City Mo., railroad officials ordered spare engines from St. Louis to get a stalled train going again and to rescue the 200 passengers from a night in a train station. A few passengers checked into hotels waiting for the new equipment. The Amtrak train was operated by the Missouri Pacific.

At Klamath Falls, work crews struggled through the night in near-zero temperatures to clear the wreckage of a New Year's Day derailment of a freight train that stranded 300 Amtrak passengers. No injuries occurred in the 4 a.m. derailment of the Burlington Northern cars on Southern Pacific tracks. Seventeen cars of the 67-car freight derailed, blocking the main line and delaying an Amtrak passenger train en route from San Diego, Calif., to Seattle, Wash.

On Monday, heat on a fourth train the Santa Fe Super Chief from Los Angeles to Chicago, failed in most cars near Emporia, Kan. Passengers bundled up in warm clothes and the train was eight hours late arriving in Chicago.

Trains weren't the only mode of travel that had difficulties over the holidays.

Motorists who ignored repeated warnings not to venture out New Year's Day found gas pumps locked in most parts of the country. Across the country, traffic was "extremely light."

Buses and airlines also reported passenger traffic was "extremely light."

Car-conscious Los Angeles, where auto club surveys earlier found almost 40 per cent of gas stations planned to open, instead found itself with only about 10 per cent pumping gas. The California Highway Patrol issued a plea: "Don't drive."

An Auto Club of New York spokesman said only 12 stations were open in the entire New York City metropolitan area and that was "more than we anticipated."

Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Kentucky and Texas reported most gas stations closed.

For the second time this week death resulted from an auto accident in which a can of gasoline was being carried. Mrs. Judith Kathleen Bovard, 25, of Lake Jackson, Tex. was killed but her husband escaped with only slight injuries when their car burst into flames after it hit a trestle Tuesday. Four persons died in a similar accident in Harrisburg, Ill., on Sunday.

An increasing complaint of gas pump attendants was abuse from drivers fed up with waiting in line and still not getting tanks filled.

Raleigh, N.C. police said station owner Kenneth M. Whitely complained a Cadillac broke into a line of waiting cars and when he refused to serve him ahead of other drivers, the driver gunned the car and hit him as it pulled away. He was bruised.

The Connecticut State Department of Consumer Affairs said it had received many calls about the problem and had advised owners not to carry guns or knives but to report abusive motorists to the police.

In New Jersey, police said they were busy taking calls from desperate drivers out of gas.

U.S.-owned mine occupied by Peruvians

LIMA (UPI) — Peruvian officials have taken over the holdings of the American-owned mining firm Cerro Corp., the second largest employer in the country. They said the nationalization was a blow against imperialism.

Officials of the military regime Tuesday entered the offices of the Cerro de Pasco Corp. in the capital and its mines and refineries in the Andes.

Speaking beneath huge banners reading "Today Cerro is Ours," the officials proclaimed the nationalization of the company was a major victory against imperialism.

The officials spoke to thousands of workers who jammed the city's San Martin square.

Posters advertising the meeting had been put up around the city, and many unions had urged their members to attend.

Cerro de Pasco, subsidiary of the Cerro Corp. of New York, the second largest employer in Peru after the government, owns copper, lead, bismuth, gold and silver mines that produce 35 per cent of Peru's mineral exports.

All Cerro's properties and payroll were taken over by Centrominero Peru, a new state corporation. The nationalization followed two years of negotiations.

ROBERT DUSENBURY

Toastmaster head elected

POMONA — Robert Dusenbury, 48, of 1810 Canyon Way has been elected president of the Pomona Toastmasters 110F.

Dusenbury, a branch claims manager with the Farmers Insurance Group, has been a member of the Toastmasters group for two years, serving in several official positions.

He will head the 16-member group for a six-month term. He succeeds Emmett Jones, Progress Bulletin advertising manager.

Charles Bohlen, 69
Former U.S. envoy to Soviet Union dies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Retired state Department diplomat Charles E. "Chip" Bohlen died Tuesday at the age of 69. He was one of America's leading diplomatic experts on the Soviet Union and the man said to have spent more time with Josef Stalin than any other American.

A spokesman said he died of cancer after a short period in Washington Hospital Center. The funeral will be held Friday at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Washington.

Bohlen spent his life learning about Russia, its language and customs, its people and its leaders. He began the studies when he was posted to Prague in 1931.

His first assignment to Moscow was in 1934, where he helped set up the embassy after the interruption in U.S.-Soviet relations between the Russian Revolution and 1933.

Bohlen's knowledge of Russian took him to all the World War II conferences between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. and he once estimated he spent 3,000 hours at the conference table with the Soviets. He was the only witness to a private meeting between President Franklin D. Roosevelt and Stalin at Yalta.

On the basis of his dealings with the Soviets, Bohlen said publicly during World War II the United States should not be blinded by the fact that Russia was its ally against Germany. "Nobody can say what the Kremlin is going to do," he said.

Police dog too anxious --plunges off building

ATHERTON, Calif. (UPI) — A police dog who mistook an officer for a prowler and plunged 120 feet from a rooftop is expected to be released from an animal hospital in a day or two.

"He's pretty sore now," Atherton Police Chief Greg Smith said of the dog, named Nando. "But I took him out for a walk and he wanted to get in the car and go to work."

Nando was chasing a scent Sunday when a policeman jumped onto the roof from a fire department ladder.

The dog mistook the officer's scent for that of the burglar and ran across the roof and off the edge.

The dog's fall was broken by an overhang 60 feet down. His injuries consisted of a broken jaw and three broken teeth.

The suspected prowler was not caught.

'... looking at the present and it doesn't work'

America's flight into dissillusionment

By ERIC F. GOLDMAN

Three times in modern America — during the depressions of 1873, 1893, and 1929 — the nation has suffered economic dislocations at least as serious as today's inflation. Before Richard Nixon, Ulysses Grant and Warren Harding also presided over administrations besmirched by serious malfeasances. In the 1890s the farm population, then the largest segment of the country, was in a state of worrisome as today's "urban crisis"; the backlash against World War I in the 1920s bore many resemblances to the present rancor concerning the Vietnam War. In one decade or another, the United States of the last century has known in strong form all the varieties of woes and discontents being felt in the 1970s.

Yet the atmosphere which which expresses thoroughgoing pessimism; the opinion polls indicating spectacularly large percentages of the population who are "disenchanted" not only with American politics but with other bedrock institutions.

'Technology gone berserk'

Nothing — not the educational system, not the corporate structure, not organized medicine or the legal apparatus — escapes the corrosive doubts. Technology, someone has remarked, has been the Bible of the American people. Now many of them watch technology's them watch technology's greatest triumph, the space program, in a mixture of pride and of apprehension that the machines whirling men to the moon may really represent technology gone berserk.

All of this matters and matters a great deal. Over the long span of history fewer civilizations have disintegrated or gone into dangerous disarray as a result of foreign armies or of economic collapse than of a loss of faith in themselves. The malaise invariably causes a withdrawal into private concerns; numbers the impetus to correct the correctable; leaves the society careening rudderless into ever more turbulent seas.

The root of the contemporary American problem seems to lie in the special nature of the national life since World War II. The country emerged from the conflict stupendously powerful, generating huge waves of prosperity, filled with social churning that promised victories over all man's ancient ills. Aspirations and expectations, both personal and for the nation, soared and kept right on soaring. The United States would police the world and lead it to comfortable, non-Communist ways; every American child would go to a fine school and almost every one, to college; families would vault from a slum to a Levittown, then to plush suburbia without grinding through the usual generations of striving. Even the last group remaining outside the barbecue, the Negroes, would be brought in, at least to some degree.

"Americans," Harry Truman once observed, "are human beings, and more so than most." Homo sapiens, U.S. variety, rushed ahead with all his high expectations and little regard for consequences or for changes he might have to make in attitudes and institutions to permit his anticipations to approach being facts. To mention only one blatant instance, most whites who decided to open opportunities to the black assumed that the process could be carried out without paying more taxes for the Negro's preparation and without disturbing their own tenor of life by permitting him to live next door or to send his child to their public school.

As a person who spent three years in the Washington of the 1960s, I can testify how little public interest existed in rudimentary, workaday alterations necessary to bring politics into the service of the sharply heightened demands being made on it. Vast yawns were produced by talk of controlling campaign expenses, shaking up the clummy seniority system of Congress, or seeking more effective ways to nominate and elect a president capable of wisely guiding a nation through that most complex of revolutions, a revolution in expectations.

So the failures, the catastrophes, worst of all the feelings of dull slidings into seeming nothingness came. The Vietnam War turned into the Vietnam nightmare; a Levittown home, less an achievement than a strait jacket; the black man, the "urban crisis." The Watergate of Richard Nixon, a presidential candidate tossed up amid massive public indifference to its own requirements for the White House, provided a rallying symbol not to rally. Harry Truman's human beings, and more so, were reacting like human beings and fleeing into "dissillusionment."

How far and how permanently have they fled? In 1973 a Seattle reporter interviewed an auto repairman and was told, "The whole damned country has gone to hell. But this is America and we've got to right ourselves." Over the two centuries of the national experience, the descendants of men and women who picked themselves up off the weary floors of battered civilizations and crossed the oceans to the "new land" have not been known to remain comfortable for very long in any atmosphere of disintegration or decline. If the early 1970s are a period of unprecedented malaise, they could nevertheless be subject to the long-running American cycle, in which originally important parts of the public have sunk into a cynical languor and then burst into highly productive demands on the institutions around them.

Certainly a new literature is appearing and seeping into mass thinking which attempts to adjust expectations to possibilities and to imperatives for change. The trend is most noticeable in the field of foreign policy, but in internal affairs as well the dominant emerging tone is one of reduced anticipations, lessened bombast, and pinpointed pragmatism. Some results are already flowing and could whet the appetite for more.

However glacially, a population perhaps waking slowly from the torpor of feeling overwhelmed, is pushing corporations, even medical associations, into action in line with the real and uninflected potentialities of the 1970s. Watergate, in addition to dispiriting people, seems to have provoked many of them; any close study of the polls suggests that it is raising questions about the presidency and general political processes rarely heard before in the popular arena of discussion.

And there is one fact, muted by more resounding news, which has its special symbolism if not its thumping importance. "The day somebody does something about the congressional seniority system," the late Sen. Everett McKinley Dirksen declared, "will be the day of the Second Coming." In the early 1970s somebody did something about it, not much but something. The later 1970s could, if not bringing the Second Coming, at least avoid Apocalypse.

India uncovers espionage ring

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Police said they are trying to smash an espionage ring that came to light last weekend when a senior information ministry official was arrested for "passing classified information to a foreign embassy."

Police said Thursday they also had questioned several government officials and two Indian journalists, but declined to name them.

A New Delhi newspaper said the foreign nation involved is Romania. The press Trust of India news agency reported the Romanian embassy's first secretary and his wife left Wednesday for Beirut.

Nixon urged to ease ills in housing field

WASHINGTON (UPI)

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., has urged President Nixon to take action to avert rising unemployment in the housing and related industries and at the same time to make it easier for middle-income Americans to buy homes.

In a letter to Nixon, Proxmire urged release of $360 million in impounded housing subsidy and rent supplement funds and activation of a program to provide mortgage loans at 7 per cent interest to middle-income families.

Proxmire, vice chairman of Congress' Joint Economic Committee, said the unemployment rate in the construction industry is 9.6 per cent, nearly double the national average, and a further drop could "trigger a nationwide recession."

He said the home-construction industry is projecting only 1.6 million housing starts next year, 24 per cent less than in 1973.

Miami graduate

Benjamin Harrison, 23rd President, graduated from Miami University in Ohio in 1852.

"A reduction of 500,000 starts will result in a loss of at least one million jobs in the construction and related industries," he said. "This accounts for at least two-thirds of the potential increase in unemployment for 1974 being predicted by private economists."

Proxmire asked the President to activate a section of the National Housing Act to provide 7 per cent mortgage loans to families with incomes of $8,000 to $12,000 a year. These families, he said, have been "squeezed out of the housing market because of escalating interest rates."

has developed in our own era is unique. For the first time in American history, a whole concatenation of circumstances — whether the aftermath of a peculiarly unpalatable war, rampant inflation, crumbling life in the cities, an unending presidency — have combined and combined in a way to produce an unprecedentedly deep and widespread attitude. Call it "cynicism," "alienation," "dissillusionment" — the words are only varying descriptions of a general pattern of thinking and reacting. In the first radiant days of the Russian Revolution, the journalist Lincoln Steffens got off the famous line, "I have seen the future and it works." In the glum United States of the 1970s, millions up and down the economic and age levels are thinking to some degree, "I am looking at the present and it does not work."

The evidence is everywhere: the striking number of thoughtful people who are ready to agree with the statement of the social commentator Margaret Mead — the United States has "slid into a pit of deterioration"; the latest report of the Institute for the Future, an organization seriously attempting to project the coming decades,

Erma Bombeck

There is nothing more depressing than to wake up New Year's Day without a headache and with nothing to regret from the night before.

No gold wedgies scattered on the stairway, no party hats on the back of the commode, no taste in your mouth like a wet chenille tongue.

Only the memory of an evening spent in front of the television set with Father Time dozing over a warm Gatorade and you watching Ben Grauer get choked up over a little silver ball.

Ever since we arrived home last New Year's morning to find our baby sitter bombed out of her mind, my husband said, "This proves it. It must be more fun to stay at home. Why should we spend an outrageous amount of money to frantically tear from one party to another, drink too much, eat too much, and feel rotten the next day?"

Before I could answer him, he said, "It is settled. Next year we stay at home. No annoying clinking glasses, shrill voices and deafening music. We are going to enjoy a stimulating evening by ourselves."

I have had more stimulating evenings selecting Tupperware. From 7 to 8:30, I picked bubble gum out of the dog's whiskers. At 9, my husband said, "I wonder what Euell Gibbons got for Christmas?"

"Maybe a compost," I answered.

At 10:30, I saw my husband sleeping in the chair and shouted at him, "Say it! I'm not getting better, I'm getting older!"

At 10:45 I went to the refrigerator for a drink. The kids had drunk all the mix and the neighbors had cleaned us out of all the ice cubes. I poured two glasses of warm Gatorade, returned to the living room and kicked my husband in the foot.

He awakened, "Did you know that at midnight all horses age one year?"

"Now I've got one for you," I said. "Did you know that if tomorrow were 'Show and Tell' I wouldn't show up?"

At 11:45 my husband's snooze alarm went off. He clicked his fingers while Carmen Lombardo sang, "Boo Hoo," flipped the porch light on and off twice and shouted, "Happy New Year." As he headed for bed he said, "This was fun. We must do this again sometime."

"Right," I yawned. "The next time the Pope has a Sunday off."

Carbon monoxide

The 'silent killer' within all of us

MILWAUKEE, Wisc. (UPI) — It's sometimes called the "silent killer." But, unlike some other poisons, everyone has some of it.

Doctors at the Medical College of Wisconsin, however, say the levels of carbon monoxide in a person's blood depends to a large extent on where he lives—and, more importantly, if he smokes.

Dr. Richard Stewart headed a recent nation-wide survey aimed at determining what the levels are. He admits the results were not unexpected.

"We knew that smoking and inhaling exhaust fumes from autos and trucks are the prime ways carbon monoxide gets in the bloodstream," Stewart said.

"We did the survey to find the levels throughout the United States to have a solid baseline so any changes to control pollution in the future can be assessed."

The survey was sponsored by the Coordinating Research Council and carried out under the technical direction of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the American Petroleum Institute and the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association.

Blood levels of 29,000 persons in 18 metropolitan centers were taken to find out how much carbon monoxide they carried.

The major findings were: —Most non-smoking adults in suburban areas had carbon monoxide levels in the 0.4 to 1.5 per cent range, the lowest of all surveyed. Stewart said combustion processes within the body itself were enough to produce a "background level" of 0.5 per cent.

—Smokers in suburban and urban areas had the highest carbon monoxide blood saturation of all surveyed, with the majority recording levels ranging from 0.6 to 9.5 per cent.

—Carbon monoxide levels of non-smoking adults in areas varied widely, with 90 per cent of those sampled in downtown Los Angeles ranging from a low of 1.0 per cent to a high of 3.2 per cent compared with a 90 per cent of those surveyed in Manhattan, who ranged from 0.8 per cent to 2.3 per cent.

The reason for the survey — and the reason that carbon monoxide is dangerous — is its affinity to displace oxygen in the red blood cells which carry oxygen to the body, Stewart explained.

If a person, for example, had a 5 per cent level of carbon monoxide, that would be 5 per cent less oxygen his body would be getting.

That oxygen deficit, Stewart said, doesn't bother healthy people whose systems can work harder to get more oxygen to the body. But for people with heart or respiratory problems, it can be dangerous.

"So far as we know people who have serious cardiovascular disease have the powers definitely impaired when they have carbon monoxide levels between 3.5 and 6 per cent," he said. "They just can't compensate."

The average level for non-smokers was 1.2 per cent. Six major cities fell into that category — Washington, Salt Lake City, Phoenix, Houston, Miami and Milwaukee—but researchers found that a pack-a-day smoker had two to three times the average.

In San Francisco the average non-smoker had 1.5 per cent carbon monoxide in his bloodstream, while the smoker averaged 5.4 per cent. In Los Angeles non-smokers had saturation of 1.8 per cent and smokers average 6.2 per cent— the highest levels of resident in any of the 18 areas sampled.

The range of samples was limited to 90 per cent of those taken, with the 10 per cent that were very high or low eliminated.

That meant that some extremely high readings—such as 10.4 per cent in Detroit, 10.3 per cent in Los Angeles and 9.9 in Chicago—were not counted.

Stewart said the study showed that cigarette smokers run the risk of high carbon monoxide levels as do some non-smokers living in urban areas. And that could cause a heart attack or other problems, he said.

"Take the example of a shopkeeper sweeping snow from the walk in front of his store," he said. "His oxygen requirement will go up 60 per cent, say, as he exerts himself. If he has a carbon monoxide level of 5 per cent and has a coronary condition that allows his heart to step up the pace only 60 per cent, he has a 5 per cent deficit."

"After two or three minutes of shoveling he'll get red in the face, have chest pains and be in trouble. He could have a heart attack."

Stewart stressed that people with cardiovascular problems would be in trouble.

Because there is less traffic in suburban areas, carbon monoxide levels there are lower. While the Milwaukee average for nonsmokers was 1.2 per cent, Stewart said, in suburban Brookfield, where he lives, readings of 0.8 or 1.0 per cent are common.

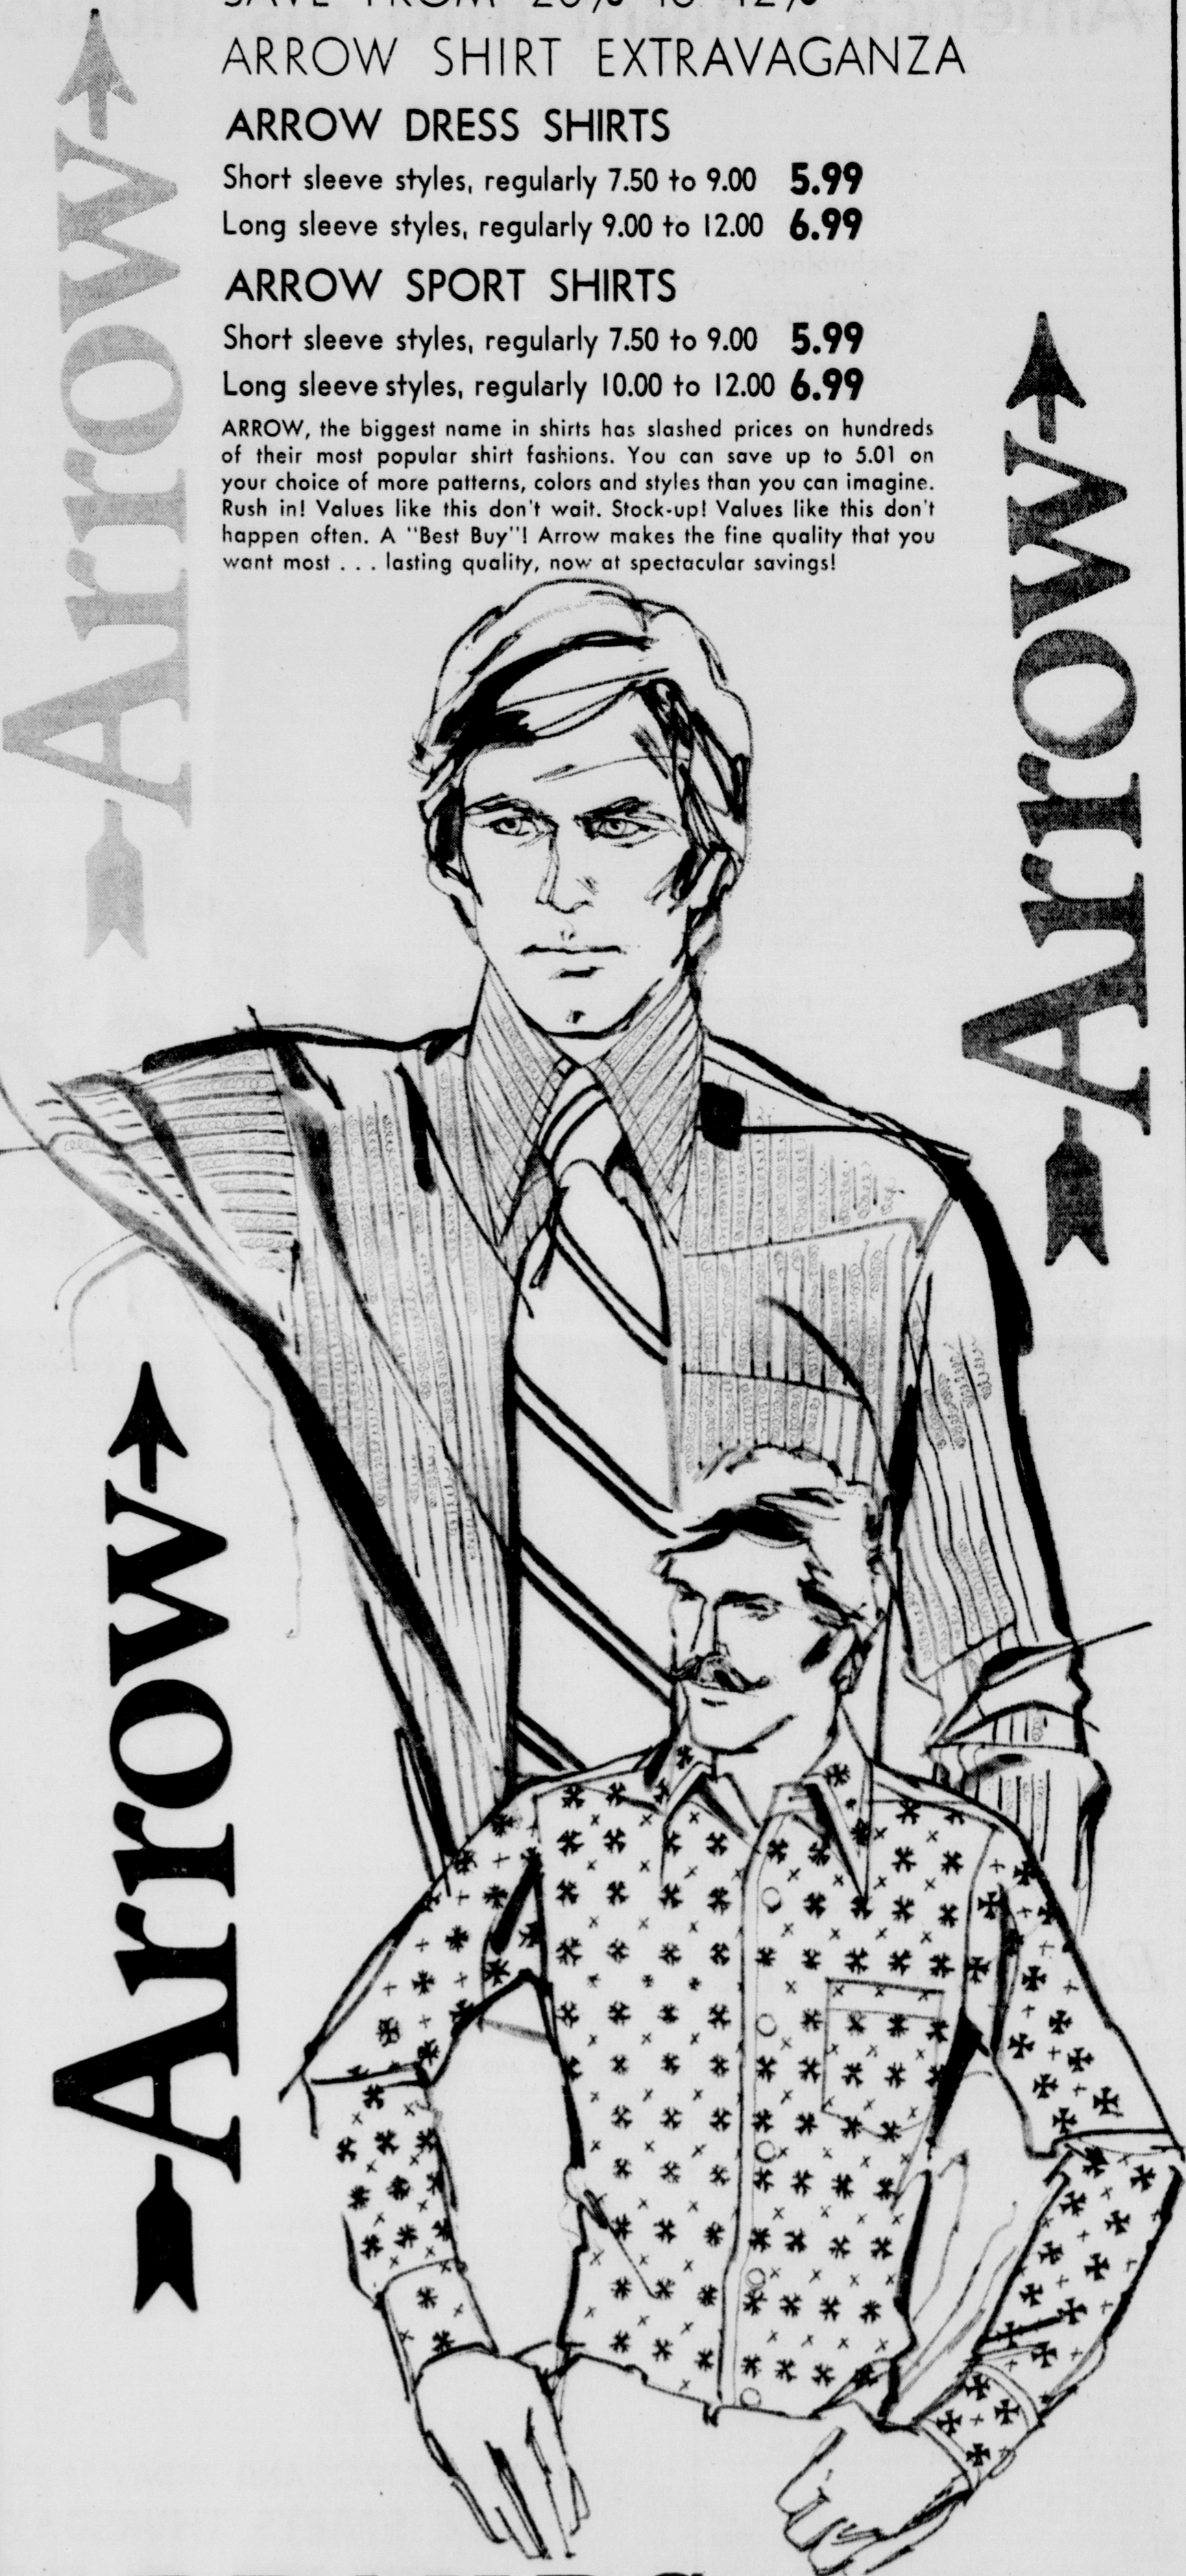

"But as they come into the city on the expressway or on another road the reading goes up quickly to 1.3 or 1.4 per cent," he said. "That accounted for some seeming variations in the study."

Townpeople liked factory's whistling

CANTON, Ill. (UPI) — It isn't often this town of 15,000 is provoked, but it was when International Harvester Co. removed its factory whistle.

Petitions were circulated and signed by 7,000 residents protesting the action. A poll run by the Canton Daily Ledger resulted in 327 votes for the whistle and only three against it.

"The last time we had this many letters was when we had a dirty movie in town," said Managing Editor Dan Holman.

Harvester silenced the whistle Dec. 21 because, it said, the state told them there were complaints and the whistle might violate noise pollution standards.

Whatever the reason, the silence provoked the community. To most it was like losing a slice of life, accustomed as they were to setting their watches and schedules by the seven-times-a-day blast of the whistle.

The whistle had signaled big events. It sounded at the armistice of World War I, the end of World War II and traditionally welcomed the new year with a minute-long blast.

On Thursday, Harvester announced it will reactivate the 61-year-old steam whistle atop its Canton plant on Jan. 2.

Eagleton ends Israeli visit

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, D-Mo., wound up a five-day visit to Israel Monday and flew back to the United States.

Before leaving from Lod International Airport, Eagleton said his inspection of Israeli military bases and tanks may lead him and other congressmen to conclude that the tank is becoming obsolete as a weapon of war.

This is so, he said, because of the development of sophisticated antitank weapons.

The doctor comments

Cholesterol often confused with fat

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I looked up cholesterol in the dictionary and it reads—A crystalline fatty alcohol, found in animal fat. It also says that some gallstones are almost pure cholesterol.

Is cholesterol essential to any body function or is it a residue? Does it cause hardening of the arteries? In a person who has had a stroke does it sometimes change their personality?

DEAR READER—That is not a very good definition of cholesterol. I would guess over half the public confuses cholesterol with fat. It is a waxy-like material formed mostly by the liver. It is drained out of the liver into the bile. It can be formed in the liver from the carbon and hydrogen in fats, carbohydrates, proteins or alcohol. There is a great tendency for the liver to form more cholesterol whenever we eat too much of anything.

The cholesterol is reabsorbed from the intestine along with the additional cholesterol in any food we eat. Thus the cholesterol entering into the bloodstream comes from both that made by the liver and that in our diet. The fat foods apparently stimulate the liver to form more cholesterol, possibly in part, because they contain so many calories, and excess calories stimulate the formation of cholesterol.

It is true that cholesterol is only an animal product. You do not find it in plants (vegetables, fruits, nuts or cereal). The most common sources of cholesterol in large amounts in our food are egg yolks and organ meats. Smaller amounts are in meat (even lean meat without fat) and milk products.

Many people seem to be confused because they have read that the body can produce cholesterol, just as I have said here. They think that if the body forms cholesterol anyway it doesn't make any difference if there is cholesterol in the food. This is wrong. The cholesterol in food and that formed in the body both affect how much is in the blood.

The diet is also important because it affects the cholesterol. The saturated fats and too many calories are the chief offenders here. So, diet is very important in most people in keeping the cholesterol and, equally important, the blood fat level down to safe levels.

A small amount of cholesterol is important in the formation of hormones and in forming those important bile salts needed to absorb fats from the small intestine (possibly a dubious benefit in some people) and other body functions. This represents such a tiny fraction of the total amount of cholesterol formed that the body has no problem meeting these requirements.

Auto salesmen pitch fuel economy

Valley buyers pick smaller cars, 'boats' losing value

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

Many motorists are thinking small in selecting new cars.

With gasoline rationing a strong probability, they are seeking compact cars that can travel 18 to 30 miles on a gallon of gas.

But the small car buyers aren't willing to give up the comforts of air conditioning and automatic transmissions for the sake of conserving fuel. These are still much in demand.

A survey of Pomona Valley car agencies reveals that Pintos, Dusters, Vegas and Colts are much more popular this year than their bigger brothers.

And, much to car buyers' disappointment, the bigger cars so popular in previous years have had a decrease in trade-in value.

Pete Johnston, co-owner of College Chevrolet in Claremont, estimated that 65 to 70 per cent of his agency's total sales this year are compact cars. This compared to about 35 per cent last year.

"There is quite a demand for the small cars, although the big cars are still selling," he noted.

His agency offers the Vega, which goes 21 to 26 miles per gallon, and the Nova, which gets about 18 miles per gallon.

Johnston offered this explanation for the decreased trade-in value for the larger cars. "People panicked. They came in droves with their larger cars and the market just couldn't absorb this amount. There is no place to sell all these bigger cars."

Increased demand hasn't yet affected the availability of these compact vehicles. "We have an adequate inventory at this time, but this may change within the next 30 days."

Prices for the smaller cars have increased from $250 to $350 per car over last year—depending on the model and accessories, he said.

Jim Rocco, owner of Pomona Chrysler, Plymouth, Inc., said the big cars there are still selling.

Compact vehicles, such as the Valiants, Dusters and Scamps account

SLOW MOVERS

The big cars which were so popular in previous years are reported to be in less demand now due to the fuel shortage. Many auto agencies note big increases in the sale of compact vehicles.

for only 50 per cent of the agency's total sales.

"Gas mileage has never been a problem with our large cars," he noted. "The Imperial gets about 14 miles per gallon and the New Yorker, from 15 to 16 miles to a gallon."

Some buyers talk about gas mileage in selecting a small car then want "all the extras" on them. If motorists would do without air conditioning and power equipment on larger cars, they would get about the same mileage as the compact vehicles, he added.

Valiants, Dusters and Scamps all get about 18 miles per gallon with air conditioning and up to 23 to 24 miles per gallon without it, said Rocco.

Regarding large car trade-ins, the owner said these are still being taken and the used big cars are "still moving."

Total sales are ahead of last year by about 250 units, he added. "I expect to sell over 1,000 new cars by the end of the calendar year."

Phil Macaluso, general manager of Chino Ford, said 90 per cent of that agency's new car sales are for Pintos, Mavericks and Mustangs and the Courier small trucks.

The number of sales is about the same as last year, but buyers are selecting more small cars, he added.

Because of the demand of small cars, there is a lower trade-in value for the larger vehicles, explained Macaluso.

Pintos and Couriers give from 22 to 26 miles per gallon while Mavericks and Mustangs travel 18 to 22 miles per gallon.

Bob Harris, owner of Liberty Ford in La Verne, agreed the Pintos, Mavericks and Mustangs are the popular models, with the Courier possibly the most popular.

He reported there is some problem getting adequate production. Prices on the compact cars are up about $240 per unit over last year, added Harris.

"For the average car owner, it would be wise for them to stay with standard-sized automobiles because of trade-in values," he reported. With so many larger cars being traded in for smaller cars, auto dealers are not able to handle that many.

Bob Thomas, general manager for Pomona Dodge, Inc., said sales of small cars are up 30 per cent over last year.

His agency offers the Colt, a four cylinder vehicle which gets up to 30 miles per gallon, and the Dart, a six cylinder car which travels 19 to 20 miles on a gallon of gas.

Cost of compact cars is up about $250 per unit over last year, he noted.

Buyers of small cars are still seeking air conditioning, which decreases gasoline mileage, said Thomas. He also reported the trade-in value for larger cars has dropped considerably this year.

John Catron, owner of Catron Motors in Pomona, said he has been fortunate enough to have a "fair stock" of new Volkswagen sedans, but is sold out of the more expensive new model Audis, buses and the larger cars.

He is, however, expecting to receive new Dasher vehicles, which includes a sedan and station wagon models.

"Sales were down the past three or four months due to a lack of cars," said Catron. "We could have sold another 150 to 200 cars if we had them." He blamed the shortage on a shipping strike, excise tax and devaluation of the U.S. dollar.

With the current fuel shortage, Catron believes the trend will lean more toward the smaller cars. The Volkswagen, depending on the driver and equipment, can get about 23 to 25 miles per gallon with "in town" driving, he said.

Regarding trade-ins, Catron said any small car is selling well. "But the larger trade-ins are standing still. We have to be very careful when taking a big car."

Frank White, owner of Frank White Imports, said "traffic is 10 times more now than at the same time last year."

Seven of 10 shoppers, however, can't buy the smaller cars his agency offers because of the low trade-in value of the larger automobiles.

Regarding the Fiats and Volvos, White said he is selling all those he can get. "But factories are limited on production and ships can just transport so many."

His allocation, he added, is based on last year's amount.

The Fiat gets more than 30 miles per gallon, while the larger Volvo gets from 18 to 26 miles a gallon. This depends if it is a four or six cylinder.

But with the new 55-mile-per-hour speed limit, all cars should get better gas mileage, said White.

PROVING A POINT

Pete Johnston, co-owner of College Chevrolet, uses a two-gallon container mounted on the front of a Caprice sedan to demonstrate that the bigger cars can get 15 miles per gallon in a combination of freeway and town driving. A decline in the sale of the larger cars has been reported.

Honesty about drug use knocks youth from A.F.

Our 17-year-old son joined the Air Force.

When he filled in forms, my husband and I had to be present at the recruiting office. My son told the recruiting officer that he had been picked up in West Covina with other boys on "possession of marijuana" but that they had been released on grounds of insufficient evidence.

The recruiting officer thanked my son for being so honest and phoned both West Covina and Pomona police. He told my husband the next day that there was no record at either station.

Just 12 days after my son arrived in Lackland Air Force Base in Texas, he phoned to tell us that he had been discharged for previous drug use.

He was told that if he signed papers he would get an honorable discharge. He did so.

Jobs are hard enough to find for a man over 18. When he is only 17 it is that much harder. My son joined the Air Force to learn a trade.

His re-enlistment code was marked RE-2. That means he cannot get back into the Air Force.

I am sure every young man has tried drugs and nine out of every 10 are never caught. So many tests are given in the Air Force offices in Los Angeles that one more wouldn't hurt. Why not give every young man who applies for enlistment a lie detector test to find out whether he was ever on drugs? There probably would be no men in the Air Force.—E.G., Pomona.

Col. Travis R. Etheridge answered our letter to Lackland Air Force Base.

He said the Air Force has no recourse but to discharge individuals who admit to pre-service use of drugs under current regulations.

Your son, he advised, may obtain a DD Form 149 from the local Veterans Administration office. The form, an application for correction of military records, may be submitted only if he can prove he was discharged without proper authority. "We try to identify drug abusers before they enlist," wrote the colonel. "Each prospective enlistee is thoroughly questioned concerning drugs and must sign a statement indicating his usage."

"Unfortunately, the desire to enlist often overcomes prudent admission. Because of legal technicalities, the use of the lie detector machine has not been employed."

He said that the action taken in your son's case has been reviewed and "I must say is final. His honorable discharge was fully consistent with the Air Force directives and does not reflect any prejudicial action."

I'm asking your assistance with a problem I'm having with a stereo and TV service company.

I have received three overdue notices and recently two notices canceling my service policy although my payments are up to date. I have written to the company three times and called twice trying to straighten things out.

I think part of the problem is that the firm's overdue notices show my due date to be the fifth of the month and it actually is the 25th.—B.L., Pomona.

We wrote to the service company. A reply from the Western area director was to the effect that your service policy has been updated in time to brighten your holidays.

1974 could be the best of years

Has there ever been a year like the one we've just been through?

If anyone had predicted last January that within 12 short months the triumphantly re-elected Nixon administration would be in shambles, with a slew of officials under indictment or the threat of indictment; that people would seriously be talking about impeaching the President; that the vice president would have resigned as an adjudged felon; that Americans would be worrying about freezing in their homes and hesitating to venture onto the highways for fear of running out of gas (if not into a truckers' blockade); that the cow would have jumped over the moon in terms of meat prices; that there would be shortages here, shortages there—that in fact, the American way of life itself we have so comfortably taken for granted would be said to be in for drastic revision—well, anybody talking so crazily would have been consigned to the looney bin.

But it all happened, and as the one we have remarked, about the only good thing that can be said about 1973—beside the fact that the Vietnam prisoners of war came home—is that the Hindenburg didn't crash that year.

As for 1974, this is one case where even fools aren't rushing in to assay what the future holds. Still, some broad outlines are visible.

"Watergate," for one thing, has got to reach some kind of climax before the year is very old. The House Judiciary Committee has set a target date of April 1 to decide whether there is enough evidence to warrant impeachment proceedings against the President.

Clearly, neither the administration nor the nation can go through another year of such uncertainty. The trials of lesser Watergate figures will go on and on, but the question of Richard Nixon's continuation in office must be settled one way or another.

The coming of peace in the Middle East—and the experts keep telling us that the chances for peace are the best in 25 years—may ease the immediate fuel crisis. But Americans have been given a taste of how things are going to be for a long time to come, until and if science comes up with new sources of energy.

In the meantime, the fat life is going to have to go on a diet—just how stringent is anybody's guess.

Perhaps the most disturbing vision of all in the clouded crystal ball is the certainty that inflation will continue apace. Whether or not it will be combined with a recession, thus creating the worst possible kind of economic situation, is the big question.

All of this is cause for worry, but none of it need be reason for despair.

Watergate, the worst political scandal in our history, will be seen in the final analysis to have been a victory for truth, honesty and good government. For all the doubt and distrust and disgust it has occasioned among Americans, Watergate has shown that the system, however slowly and fitfully, is ultimately self-correcting. The ideals upon which the country was founded are still viable and valid, and they exact a severe price from those who would betray them.

For the battered planet, the energy crisis and the ongoing problem of feeding the world's growing billions and uplifting their lives must lead to a new era of cooperation among nations and good will among men.

The year 1974 could be the worst of years. But even if only a beginning is made toward meeting its myriad challenges, it could also be the best of years.

A wave of the future

The energy crisis is "the most phony crisis ever inflicted upon a modern society," claims Ralph Nader.

Society, says the consumer advocate, wastes 40 per cent of its energy. So how can there be a crisis? Nader is a man who never minces a word or pares an exaggeration. Yet a recent item in the news makes one wonder.

The city of El Cajon is going to build a Solid Waste Resources Recovery Demonstration Center to convert garbage and trash into fuel. The center, to be completed by 1975, will cost $3.2 million, which is peanuts compared to what it will do.

Initially, it will convert 200 tons of trash daily into burnable fuel, including low-sulfur oil. Eventually, it will process 1,000 tons of trash a day into enough fuel to meet the needs of 30,000 people.

If $3.2 million can do this for 30,000 people by 1975, what could a few billion do for 200 million people even sooner?

Or would we suddenly hear certain segments of the economy howling: "Hold on now. Let's not rush into anything. The energy crisis is not as bad as all that."

Thought for today

Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it.—Proverbs 22:6.

Upon our children — how they are taught — rests the fate — or fortune — of tomorrow's world. — B.C. Forbes, American business editor.

Indians win in costly show trial

WASHINGTON — True to a 350-year tradition of persecuting Indians, the Justice Department used fraudulent testimony in its recent attempt to convict three impoverished Indians.

The harassed trio—an Ojibway and two Tuscaroras, two of whom can't even read—were accused of receiving stolen government documents.

The Justice Department staged a seven-day show trial, which cost the taxpayers tens of thousands of dollars. A crack criminal attorney, Paul Boucher, was sent from Washington to Wilmington, N.C., to help U.S. Attorney Thomas McNamara with the prosecution.

Their star witness was a turncoat Sioux named Larry Blacksmith, who gave testimony that the Justice Department must have known was false.

Document heist

The case grew out of the great document heist of November 1972. A group of militant Indians arrived in Washington to protest innumerable and timeless grievances. They first occupied, then vandalized, then looted the building housing the Bureau of Indian Affairs.

In the rows of file cabinets, they discovered documentary evidence of the bungling neglect and betrayal that have characterized the white man's conduct toward the Indian. They bundled thousands of documents out of the building in the dead of night and hauled them out of Washington in a 40-car motor caravan, which was escorted by police with motorcycles roaring. Not until the Indians had scattered did the authorities discover that thousands of documents were missing. The FBI organized a nationwide dragnet to retrieve the stolen papers. Several newsmen also set off in search of them.

Cease firing and pass the mustard

NEW YORK — It is not generally known that the real cause of the long-standing hostility between Israel and the Arab countries is corned beef.

Though this seems surprising at first, the process of logical deduction leads to the inevitable conclusion that this is the source of the problem.

First of all, while it is true that the Arabs and the Israelis are of differing religions, this is no reason to go around fighting wars and causing international tension and making motorists run out of gas on the Indian Turnpike. The Costa Ricans and the Icelanders, for instance, are of different religions, they do not attack each other and rarely even call each other bad names.

Throughout history, in fact, countries with different religions have coexisted side-by-side, or at least fought their war once and for all and then forgot it, without dragging things out. Thus we see that religion is not the cause of the Mideast problem.

I am a handicapped Veteran, living on a small pension. My vision and hearing are slowly leaving me. The doctors say they can do nothing, so I have made hobbies to keep busy and fight off periods of mental depression and despondency, which seem to plague me most of the time.

While I am collecting antique valentines and old post cards, I am also collecting rare old calendars and advertising cards, in hopes of writing a book about the items I collect, and earn enough from it to get off this small VA pension and have medical care, which the VA is unable to afford me. So my hobbies have a dual purpose.

Living on limited funds, I depend on friends and others for the items I collect, and was wondering if any of your readers had any antique valentines, old post cards or rare old calendars they

My associate Les Whitten, after crisscrossing the country and holding secret meetings with the militants, was the only outsider who gained access to the documents.

Documents returned

Meanwhile, soft-spoken Indian negotiator Hank Adams tried to persuade the militants to give up the documents. He argued that the stolen records contained vital information that was important to the protection of Indian rights and claims.

Les Whitten was on the scene again when the first large batch of documents were returned to Hank Adams, who made arrangements to turn them over to the government. But on the way, Adams and Whitten were arrested by the FBI and charged with receiving stolen property.

Last February, in a rare rebuke to the Justice Department, the grand jury refused to indict Adams or Whitten. Meanwhile both Whitten and I swore under oath that we had no part in the theft, that we had no control over the documents and that we paid no money to see them.

Yet the Justice Department doesn't give up easily. In Wilmington, prosecutors Boucher and McNamara put their star witness on the stand. Larry Blacksmith duly testified that the Ojibway defendant "made the contact with a reporter associate of Jack Anderson, Ben Franklin . . .

Turncoat Sioux

"Jack Anderson is a reporter for the New York Times," swore the turncoat Sioux, who said he had been told "Jack Anderson" would give the Indians "$20,000 plus . . . one hundred free stories" in exchange for a look at the North Carolina documents.

The prosecutors permitted Blacksmith to go ahead with this testimony, though the Justice Department had the grand jury record and other sworn testimony flatly disputing it.

The facts are that our column doesn't even appear in The New York Times, that Times reporter Ben Franklin has never worked with me and that I never offered $20,000 or even a buffalo nickel for the documents.

For an attorney knowingly to present false testimony before a court is a disbarment offense. Boucher and McNamara denied in long talks with us that they knew the charges about the $20,000 were false.

Unchecked testimony

They admitted, however, that they made no effort to check the testimony they knew their witness would give. Boucher conceded also that he knew Franklin was a reporter for The New York Times.

Furthermore, Boucher admitted that Hank Adams, a witness at the trial, had approached him privately to advise him that his star witness had given false testimony. Yet Boucher didn't bother to check Adams' warnings, much less correct the court record.

In summing up, Boucher said the linking of our column with the North Carolina case wasn't done to prejudice the jury. If false information got into the complicated case, he said, "it wasn't due to malice."

The New York Times' respected Ben Franklin told us that he had gone to North Carolina in quest of the documents but that neither he nor his paper had offered 20 cents much less $20,000 for the papers.

As it happened, the Justice Department's dubious tactics didn't pay off. The jury spent only 55 minutes in acquitting the three Indians of all charges.

It has also been said that the dispute centers around the land occupied by what is now Israel. But it is clear that the way things are done in the world is to let bygones be bygones when it comes to conquered territory. Do the British keep attacking the United States to get Massachusetts back? Do the Italians keep attacking Britain to get back the colony the Romans lost? Does Mexico keep attacking Texas to get the Alamo back? Does the suburb of Oak Lawn, Ill., keep attacking Chicago to get back the territory it lost by annexation?

No, they don't. In situations like this, people have traditionally adopted the profound philosophy best explained by Doris Day when she sang "que sera, sera" which means "life is not a bowl of cherries after all, is it?"

Another explanation sometimes given for the Arab-Israeli differences is that the two nations are actually only pawns in the bigger battle between the Soviet Union and the United States.

But if that line of reasoning were valid, then we would find things like North Vietnam fighting South Vietnam, which we do find. This is the exception that proves conclusively the rule that logic can always be counted on in studying international relations.

Therefore, since no other reason holds up under scrutiny, there is obviously only one possible explanation for the animosity in the Middle East: the Israelis like to eat corned beef, while the Arabs don't. Have you ever seen an Arab eating a corned beef sandwich on rye, with or without pickles and mustard. Of course not. Which leads us to an obvious solution to all the trouble: instead of sending weapons to the Middle East, the United States should send tons of corned beef, thousands of loaves of rye bread, hundreds of gallons of mustard and perhaps even a little potato salad. Then the Arabs and Israelis could get together on neutral ground and eat themselves into harmony.

It is the only approach to the situation that makes any sense.

Gossip for today

Some folks worry about the energy crisis — but not the dedicated women's equality activists. They have far more important things to set aright. Like the young lady who is loudly shouting DISCRIMINATION because on her favorite beach only males are allowed to wear topless bathing suits. Or another women's libber who is protesting because ministers are called Clergymen. It would be far more appropriate to just call them CLERGY, she contends. And what's more, these militant women's righters are slowly but surely winning the battle of the sexes. Over in Claremont, for instance, the Men's Garden Club of Claremont has finally seen the light. It is now the Claremont Garden Club and women are allowed to become members.

INSIDE REPORT

Dipping into Pentagon oil

By Rowland Evans and Robert Novak

WASHINGTON — Behind torrid infighting last week over energy boss William E. Simon's decision to tap Pentagon aviation fuel for commercial overseas carriers was Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger's resentment at the ouster of retired Vice Adm. Eli T. Reich as fuel allocations chief.

Simon and Reich reached their parting of the ways early this month when Reich, feeling downgraded in Simon's fast-building bureaucracy, rebelled. His departure from Simon's Energy Administration immediately followed.

Reich had worked for Schlesinger in the Pentagon before he moved into the oil allocations business in the Interior Department a few months ago, unbeknownst to Schlesinger. Pentagon sources say that Simon took pains to call Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements before Reich's ouster to make sure that Reich could return to the Pentagon. That was a humane gesture Schlesinger did not know about.

Thus, when Simon's fast-moving men got the permission of Pentagon underlings for a dip into the Pentagon's reserve fuel hoard, without first clearing it with Schlesinger, the secretary did a fast bolt which quickly made itself felt throughout the Pentagon and was reflected in official statements.

Actually, President Nixon himself talked to Schlesinger before the final decision to tap the reserve fuel, and Schlesinger was considerably mollified. Then, when he learned that Simon had specifically spoken to Clements to make sure that Reich would be taken care of, he cooled off.

A footnote: When Simon's new men took over the regional location offices from Reich's old men, they found thousands of unanswered queries from businessmen cluttering the desks. Reich had regional staffs numbering less than half a dozen; these staffs are now beefed up to 50 to 100 people in each of the 10 regional offices.

The cost of reform

Reformist decisions at the runaway national Democratic convention in Miami Beach in 1972 are costing the financially hard-pressed party at least $1.5 million, with the probability of the price tag rising still higher.

The Delegate Selection Commission and the Charter Commission, each created by the 1972 convention, cost $300,000 apiece in 1973, with another $180,000 budgeted for the Charter Commission in 1974. The convention also required the 1974 party charter conference to be held at Kansas City in December 1974—in effect, a midterm national convention. Its price tag: at least $750,000.

That adds up to $1,530,000. Considering the disaster wrought by the reforms drafted by the old McGovern commission, everybody agrees that money spent by the Delegate Selection Commission to write new rules is money well spent. But the need for a party charter or a charter convention, adopted by the 1972 convention, is widely doubted in the party.

Worse yet, the 1972 convention required that 8 per cent of all party funds raised nationally be set aside to finance indigent delegates attending the 1976 convention. Chairman Robert Strauss has frankly informed the national committee that he simply has not been able to do this so far. But he must eventually comply with the convention's mandate. Assuming the party raises $10 million in the next four years, Strauss would have to come up with $800,000 for needy delegates in 1976.

How much oil?

At least half the Senate is expected to sponsor a bill establishing the Bureau of Energy Information for the first time forcing oil companies to reveal their reserves.

The bill will also uncover large "secondary" reserves of scarce fuel held by users, such as electric utilities. Never before has the federal government been able to extract such vital national information from companies wanting to hoard information about their fuels as much as they have wanted to hoard the fuel itself.

All that will change under terms of the stiff measure introduced by Democratic Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin. In a letter to be sent to their colleagues next week, the two Senators say that if "official statistics on the status of our energy resources were regularly called to the attention of the American public in a way that commanded attention, the present crisis might well have been avoided."

That may exaggerate the case, but the bill nevertheless is for vital fuel-scarce years ahead. Yet, on three separate occasions early this year, administration officials rejected forcing U.S. industry to tell the truth about their reserves. The administration has now changed its tune and is drafting a bill of its own to accomplish that purpose.

At San Antonio Community Hospital

Two more new units are now completed

UPLAND — The $20-million, 10-year, San Antonio Community Hospital expansion program is well under way here with a 29-bed medical-surgical unit and a completely remodeled 32-bed maternity unit already completed.

The new maternity-nursery pavilion has been officially opened. The newly refurbished and modernized unit features a separate entrance off San Bernardino Road where expectant parents can be received without delay 24 hours a day. At night a television camera scans the doorway and the new reception-waiting room so nurses at the modernized nurses' station can view callers and begin preparations to receive the expectant mother.

Once the new mother has delivered, the baby is taken to the brightly lighted nursery, complete with Mother Goose nursery rhyme murals, for post-natal care. The mother, in the event of difficulties, may be placed in the new three-bed, post-partum room for constant care and observation until recovery.

A new teaching room has been added for the use of the new mothers learning breast-feeding techniques and infant care during their stay in the hospital.

Currently under construction and scheduled for completion in February 1974 is the fourth floor orthopedic-surgical unit, and the emergency, outpatient and ancillary unit scheduled for completion in late 1975. A new parking lot north of the emergency, outpatient and ancillary unit is also under construction to relieve current parking problems at the hospital.

Hans Wiik, hospital assistant administrator, said the completion of the fourth floor orthopedic-surgical unit in February will signal the completion of the "first increment" of the 10-year expansion-modernization program.

Work on the "second and largest increment," including the emergency, outpatient and ancillary departments, has already begun, said Wiik. He explained the second increment would expand the hospital's laboratory, radiology, electroencephalography, physical therapy, respiratory therapy, pharmacy, nuclear medicine and dental units. Contracting for the second increment is the Stolte, Inc., construction company which bid $5,774,000 for the project.

Wiik said construction of a $1.4-million mental health unit will begin in July of next year, with the addition of 18 new mental health beds to the present 32 beds at the Barr Pavilion.

The entire project designed in 1970 by Harnish, Morgan and Causey, Architects, is scheduled to be completed in 1980 with the major addition of beds to occur in 1978, with the construction of a five story, 155 modular "patient-care" tower.

NEW MATERNITY WING

The new maternity pavilion at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland was recently completed, signaling the completion of the first phase of the $20 million 10-year expansion-modernization plan for the 309-bed hospital. Construction of a new emergency, outpatient, and ancillary wing has also begun along with a new parking lot for hospital visitors and outpatients.

Sparrow, from Zeoring, Iowa, drives this huge team of Belgian draft horses, averaging one ton each in weight. The "hitch" will represent OLD MILWAUKEE DAYS, the civic celebration that annually features the Schlitz Circus Parade on the Fourth of July in Milwaukee, Wis. ## Bridge Lead is vital in 'mod' play

By Oswald & James Jacoby
One of the many developments for the better in modern play is that defenders think more carefully about what card to lead during the play.
Twenty-five years ago South would have had no trouble making his four spade contract against almost any defending players. He would win the heart lead with dummy's ace; draw trumps and lose the diamond finesse.

West	North	East	South

Some East players would lead back partner's suit. After that friendly play South would be able to discard two of his clubs on dummy's good diamonds and score an overtrick.
A better East player would see the need for a club shift and would automatically lead back the three spot. Fourth best was standard then; it is still standard now, but with exceptions.
This hand represents one of the exceptions.
East can see that his side needs to get three fast tricks to beat the four spade contract. If his partner holds ace-queen-10 of clubs, the jack lead is essential so that East can hold the lead and continue the suit. It doesn't appear likely, but it is possible. East has nothing to lose by leading the jack and any modern expert will make that play.

Romantic budgies can use some help

By DR. FRANK MILLER.
DEAR DR. MILLER: I have just read where budgies begin to behave romantically very early in the year, many times in January. I had planned to breed my very compatible pair, Romeo and Juliet, this spring. I had no idea they might start so early! They look healthy enough but is there anything I can or should do to get them ready?—W.Y.
Dear W.Y.: If R and J are going to make it, romantically speaking, this January, you are not going to have time to help much, aside from providing a nest box. Even if they don't use it this early, it might be a none-too-subtle hint for romance sometime in the future. At least be sure they are well supplied nutritionally. Offer them a wide variety of seed, vitamins and minerals small amounts of fresh greens and possibly, additional proteins in the form of a small amount of milk, separately or added to drinking water. Extra proteins are particularly important during that period from mating through motherhood.

DEAR DR. MILLER: When I was given these black mol-lies, I was told they were three months old which would make them about eight months old now. I was worried for a while because they were all gray, but finally some of them did turn black. The rest are still gray. Are they defective?—C.E.
Dear C.E.: Not unless you consider females "defective."

(If you do, it would be well to remain silent and, hopefully, anonymous.) The young, gray-black mol-lies gradually become black, the males completing this job when they are approximately six months old. The females do lag a bit in this department. Some may not turn completely black until they are 18 months old.
DEAR DR. MILLER: We discovered, quite by accident, that Texas, our cat, is a pea picker. She picked up frozen peas off the floor and ate them even before they were completely thawed. Since then, we save out raw peas for her and she is really crazy about them. She likes cooked peas, too, but not quite as much. Because she is so fond of them, is there any reason why she shouldn't have peas when we do?—R.E.

Dear R.E.: Your pea-pick-in' pussycat can't digest peas quite as well as you can but she can still derive nutritional value from them, particularly when they are cooked. The cooking greatly enhances the digestibility of the protein in peas. However, an occasional raw one would, of course, do her no harm.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Has nightmares

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: I think I am a pretty healthy person, mentally and physically, but every night I have to go to bed because I know that I will experience a night of terror because of my dreams. I'm terrified that I'll have a heart attack because of this panicky feeling. I've tried drinking alcohol, warm non-alcoholic drinks, and even exercise before I retire but nothing seems to make much difference. Sleeping pills don't help either; in fact, they make it worse sometimes.

I was the eldest of four children and I've had nightmares since I was about fourteen. I have a happy family life now and I'm not aware of anything bothering me other than the usual problems of daily living. I'm quite successful in my business, my wife is faithful, and my children are not junkies or dropouts. In short, everything seems to be pretty normal, but if everything's A-O-K., then why the nightmares? — B.P.

Dear B.P.: No one is quite certain why some people suffer from night panic. The only thing known is that nightmares can cause the most intense form of fear the human body can experience.

Dr. Charles Fisher, a psychiatrist who has conducted research on sleep, reports that night terror comes during the deepest state of non-dreaming sleep. During a nightmare the heart rate doubles or sometimes triples, mounting from 64 beats to as many as 168 beats per minute. Nightmares generally involve a single vivid mental image, but they are not dreams in the ordinary sense. They are more like brief psychotic attacks related to a traumatic episode in the subject's past. There are no physical or mental after-effects, Dr. Fisher reports. This should help to relieve your fear of heart attacks in the night.

Some people feel that nightmares may be caused by fear that is repressed during the waking hours. Sometimes people are so afraid of being afraid that they never express their fear but consistently deny its existence and stifle it. The fear does not disappear but simply goes underground and may be released in the unconscious during sleep.

Psychological studies at Yale University show that first-born children tend to be much more frightened than younger children in a family. They fear the possibility of accident or physical injury and so tend to avoid dangerous activity and even sports with high risks. In situations where the threat is not physical first-borns are no more fearful than others. Some theorize that this fear is related to a possible lower pain threshold of first-born children.

Fear is normal and children as well as adults should be encouraged to discuss and express their fears freely. When parents or adults instill a sense of shame related to the expression of fear it's more likely to go underground as the person tries to hide anxiety. When the normal fears of a young child are ridiculed or badly handled by adults, the child becomes embarrassed to talk about his fears and he may try to bluff his way to bravery. The fears may never really be overcome because they are never looked at or examined rationally.

Try to find out if there are any fears or anxieties you are repressing or have repressed in the past. If there are, it might be well to make a list of them and to discuss them openly with your wife. By talking them out you may find that you have less need to live through them in your sleep.

You also can probably get a clue to your fears by carefully analyzing the content of your nightmares.

Smoking linked with heart attacks

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first direct causative link between cigarette smoking and arterial thrombosis, the process which leads to heart attack, stroke and peripheral vascular disease, is the subject of a report in the medical journal, "Circulation."

Dr. Peter H. Levine, a physician at the Tufts-New England Medical Center in Boston, presents data showing that smoking of only one standard filter tipped cigarette has a striking effect on the reactivity of the blood platelets. Blood platelets are one of the cellular components of the blood. They are small cells, much smaller in size than red blood cells. Their major function is to initiate the blood clotting system. Dr. Levine's demonstration of markedly enhanced platelet function following cigarette smoking may explain why cigarette smokers have higher documented rates of heart attack, stroke, occlusive peripheral vascular disease and sudden death than do non-smokers.

Poisoned

More than 500,000 children will swallow poison this year. Most will be under five years of age. Doctors say virtually all of the poisonings are preventable.

Commuting with nature

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

One of the fringe benefits of living in Claremont and working in Pomona—possibly the ONLY one—is the short drive to and from my place of employment each day.

This twice-a-day 15-minute trip saves gas, oil and time, cuts down on pollution and ecology and all those things we want to save or get rid of. It is also a valuable quarter of an hour. Going down in the morning it gives you a few moments of quiet contemplation, a chance to get your eyes open and the taste of egg out of your mouth, get the old brain functioning again, making plans for the work awaiting you at your desk and trying to remember those three things your wife said to be sure to pick up on the way home.

The return in the evening is equally useful. While dodging through traffic, a little tired, starting to relax, you contemplate the achievements of the day and give serious thought to the waiting martini. You also try to remember those three things your wife told you to be sure to pick up—they return with the clarity of a computer printout as you pull into the driveway.

Many years ago when I was working in New York City and living out-country a piece, my commuting was a five-minute bus ride and an hour train ride to what we referred to as "the city." Those morning excursions on the New York Central were something out of Kafka. Thousands of identical businessmen swarmed into the cars like lemmings headed for the sea. Each made for his customary seat, stuck his commuter ticket in the brim of his hat and snapped open the N. Y. Times or Herald Tribune, and retreated behind it like a turtle withdrawing into its shell.

They then had their comfortably clicking hour to wake up, to recover from a hangover, to make plans for the business day ahead, and to see how the Giants did yesterday. No one speaks; no one acknowledges the presence of anyone else. Car after car is a silent forest of unfolded newspapers.

The same men climb on the same cars and sit in the same seats on the return trip in the evening, but there is a startling change. The day is over, with its triumphs or defeats, the evening cocktail beckons. There is conversation over the World-Telegrams and the Daily Newsies; there is laughter. Some men have reversed the two-man seats and are playing bridge. Quite a few of the commuters have carefully calculated the train departure time to allow them to knock back a couple of neat whiskies in the Grand Central Bar, increasing the clubby ambience of the train.

There are more women aboard the evening train. The morning trip had only a few females, usually primly clad secretarial-types as sleep-stoned and uncommunicative as the men. The return trip scoops up a lot of Scarsdale matrons who have been to town on a shopping spree, lunch with "the girls" at Schrafft's, and the matinee at the Ethyl Barrymore. The voice level of the train is noticeably higher, especially if "the girls" have giddily imbibed a Pink Lady or two after the show.

The commuting interval is important in the world of every working man and woman. Some drive long distances, some even fly. My brother requires two hours each day from his front door to his desk—and two hours back.

I'm glad Pomona is so close to Claremont. And vice versa.

Mary Ann Callan, former women's editor and metropolitan writer for the Los Angeles Times, will open the program which starts with luncheon at noon in the Founders Room, McConnell Center. A discussion will follow led by Harrison Stephens, former news editor and assistant managing editor of the Progress-Bulletin. Callan and Stephens are now news directors of Pitzer and Claremont Graduate School, respectively.

Presiding at the lecture, third in a series of five under the general theme, "Whose Law and Whose Order? (Moral Issues of Our Time)," will be Mrs. Thomas M. Sawyers, chairman of The Academy. Students from The Collegian, a five-college newspaper at Claremont, will participate in the discussion.

Advance reservations are required and can be made by calling 626-8511, ext. 3145.

CLAREMONT—Dr. Leonard Pronko, professor of Romance language, Pomona College, will participate in a Japan Week program at York University in Toronto, Canada, Jan. 12.

Pronko, who is considered one of America's leading authorities on kabuki, a highly stylized form of theater developed in 17th century Japan, will present a lecture-demonstration of the kabuki play, "Bonkei at the Bridge." He will be assisted in the demonstration by Takao Tomono, a graduate of the Claremont Graduate School who studied kabuki techniques with the National Theater of Japan.

Pronko will share the program with the teacher-dancer, Shozo Sato of Illinois State University. The Japan Week program is devoted to various lectures, exhibits and performances representing different phases of Japan's art and history.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You tend to profit today only if you use your abilities and thinking power. Should you rely upon others instead, little will be gained.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A plan encompassing your overview of an important situation is reasonably accurate. It may fail because you'll coast instead of pushing.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You will not reap as much as you should from a matter where you share an interest. Guard against rationalizing.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Make important decisions today based upon reason, logic and practicality. An emotional perspective will cloud judgment.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something important for advancing your work or career can now be achieved through personal merit. Using politics as a tool won't cut it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you want this to be a productive day you'll have to allow less time for socializing. Play, not work holds the stronger attraction.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before jumping to aid outsiders today ask yourself, "Is this needed more by my own family?" You could be helping the wrong party.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something you're thinking of for the home will not turn out as you envisioned. Be sure any merchandise bought today can be returned.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Benefits gained through prudent management and cutting corners will be wasted today due to an unwise last-minute change of mind.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will be better for all concerned if you manage those in your charge with logical firmness rather than trying to buy their loyalty.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your first thoughts as to what course is best for your family are the right ones. Later you'll dilute these ideas to something ineffective.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friendship you have with a member of the opposite sex should be kept on a platonic level. Romantic involvement would cause complications.

Your Birthday, Jan. 3

This will be an active year for you socially. Much joy will come through those younger than yourself. Money will come easier but you're apt to be more wasteful than usual.

Lovable Woody saves Big 10 prestige

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

PASADENA — Woody Hayes opened the new year right. Even the good folks of Michigan must be impressed. There is no question Southern California is treating Woody with respect after his Ohio State Buckeyes crushed USC, 42-21, in the Rose Bowl here Tuesday afternoon before 105,267 fans. The 1974 contest was just the reverse

Don Bradley

Progress-Bulletin
Staff Writer

Woody reveals miracle of love

PASADENA — It was unbelievable. Woody Hayes came right out and said it. Publicly, in front of witnesses. Into microphones. Without hesitating. "I LOVE YOU ALL," were the stunning words uttered by Wayne Woodrow to the assembled writers, broadcasters, and photographers as he left the speaker's platform in the crowded Ohio State interview area.

It just goes to show what winning can do to a person.

Winning and miracles that is. The veteran Ohio State coach had witnessed his 19-year-old sophomore signal caller, Cornelius Greene, rare back and throw eight passes.

Furthermore, he COMPLETED six of them for 129 yards!

"I don't mind telling you it's the greatest victory I've ever had personally and the greatest WE'VE ever had," Hayes had told writers following the Buckeyes' 42-21 conquest of Southern California.

Hayes revealed he was somewhat surprised by the number of points his team had scored. "We figured 28 points would be enough to win," he said, "and the rest were like frosting on the cake."

"When did you find out about the forward pass," asked a brash member of the fourth estate.

A smiling reply

Woody grinned, actually GRINNED. "Oh, we've been working every day on our passing," he answered. "Cornelius (Greene) worked and worked and worked and he really improved."

"Actually," he continued, "we thought we could pass on them."

For days we writers and broadcasters have been busy telling people how Ohio State NEVER passed and how Greene, in particular, COULDN'T pass (only 14 of 38 with six interceptions all season).

That noise you've been hearing all day is the sound of Southern California members of the press manfully biting, chewing, and gulping away as we go through the process of eating our words.

The much maligned Greene refused to take credit for his performance.

"Archie (Griffin) kept telling me I could pass," he smiled. "And I knew we HAD to pass."

The slender (6-0, 172 pounds) quarterback admitted he felt "let down" after having his first attempt of the afternoon intercepted.

"Coach Hayes gave us examples of players who had fumbled and lost the ball and he told us to forget about the mistakes," said Greene.

"We didn't pass much this season," he continued. "I probably passed as much today as I have all year. But we really didn't have to throw much. My thumb was real bad (sore) in the Michigan game and I couldn't grip the ball well at all."

Green was asked if he would like to pass more every game.

"I just want to fit into the program," he said with a smile.

Greene estimated that the Buckeyes ran 70 per cent of their plays behind All-American tackle John Hicks.

USC was moved

Hicks and his teammates in the OSU offensive line moved the USC defensive line more than anyone since Oklahoma. The Sooners rushed for 330 yards against Troy while the Buckeyes made 323.

"We knew within our hearts they couldn't stop us up front," Hicks said. "It's about time we won. We didn't think anybody could beat us like they did last year and we wanted to prove it. This year we had the best spring practice ever."

Since Ohio State arrived in Pasadena, Hayes had been busy disclaiming any revenge motive or that he was on a crusade.

Don't you believe it.

While the Trojans were taking a 21-14 lead in the third quarter, Woody charged down the sidelines to where his offensive line was standing. He was yelling excitedly and emphasized his remarks with a punch-like motion to Hicks' body.

"I let down one time (on Griffin's fumble) and it cost us," explained Hicks. "Coach said if they scored we had to get out and score more. I knew I couldn't let down again."

LOCAL - NATIONAL

Sports

of last year's meeting when USC's national champions broke open a 7-7 halftime battle to end up winning, 42-17.

Woody was determined it wouldn't happen again.

USC snapped this year's 14-14 halftime deadlock by taking a 21-14 lead in the third period but it was all Buckeyes the rest of the way as OSU scored the final four touchdowns to break the game open.

The 42 points was the third highest by a Big Ten representative since the current Rose Bowl series started in 1947. Only Illinois in 1947 (45) and Michigan in 1948 (49) rolled up more scores.

Obviously, Hayes restores prestige to the Big Ten. The proud midwestern conference was smarting by four consecutive defeats at the hands of Pacific-8 champions Stanford and USC.

Ohio State also saved itself and the Big Ten by whipping USC. It wipes out the criticism leveled at the conference for selecting the Buckeyes over Michigan for the Pasadena trip after the two powers fought to a 10-10 tie to share the Big Ten title.

The tie with Michigan cost the Buckeyes the national crown. Ohio State, which was ranked no. 1 going into the Michigan game, completes its unbeaten season with a 10-0-1 record while USC, the Pac-8 champions, settles for a final 9-2-1 mark.

Most football experts felt USC would rate the edge because of its more versatile attack but Hayes, the avowed critic of the pass, made good on his promise that his Buckeyes would go to the air.

The leadership of quarterback Cornelius Greene, the unanimous choice as

Nebraska takes complete victory

DALLAS (UPI) — A well known football critic had a choice seat Tuesday at the 38th Cotton Bowl game, and he came up with a fairly pointed review of the drama which ended in a 19-3 Nebraska win over Texas.

"The University of Texas," said Barry Switzer, "would have to play Missouri for third place in the Big Eight Conference."

Switzer, whose Oklahoma Sooners soundly whipped both Cotton Bowl entrants this season but were forbidden from bowl competition because of last year's recruiting scandal, could find no argument.

The eleventh-rated Cornhuskers' decision over eighth-ranked Texas, Nebraska's fifth straight bowl win, was as complete as their fans could have wanted.

The only thing that spoiled it, and for a while appeared might have kept it from happening at all, was a valiant goal line stand by Texas late in the first half which left the score at 3-3 following a wild 30 minutes of football.

But in the second half a key interception by safety Bob Thornton in the end zone, a runback by Thornton of a short field goal attempt, the off-the-bench quarterbacking of Steve Runty and the running of Tony Davis served to make it a Nebraska show.

And afterwards the Nebraska players did not hide their belief that Texas would be just another club in the Big Eight instead of a yearly champion in the Longhorns' own Southwest Conference.

"Texas would be third in the Big Eight behind Nebraska and Oklahoma," said Thornton, "and Missouri might give them a heck of a battle."

Switzer, who visited the Nebraska dressing room following the game, expressed no surprise at all at the outcome.

"I didn't think Texas could move the ball on them," the Oklahoma coach said. "Nebraska has a strong football team. I'm not stunned at all."

Golfers hope weather, host's health improve

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — There was hope today that both the weather and the host's health would improve by the time the 33rd Bing Crosby Pro-Am golf tourney launches the 1974 pro golf circuit Thursday.

The sun peeped through Tuesday to start the task of drying off the rain-soaked fairways of the Pebble Beach, Cypress Point and Spyglass Hill courses where the annual clambake takes place.

"There is casual water almost anywhere you want to find it," said Billy Casper. "The courses are all playing very long."

The tees were so wet that some golfers slipped while trying to belt practice drives, but another day of sunshine could make the courses play well.

Crooner Crosby, who founded the tournament in Southern California and serves as host and television commentator, meanwhile is battling a case of pleurisy at an undisclosed hospital.

But his butler reported Tuesday that Crosby is responding well to medication and feels he is almost sure to show up Thursday at Pebble Beach.

Longhorn coach Darrell Royal, whose team had won six games in a row after an early season loss to Oklahoma, was more than gracious in defeat.

"It was a good clean football game and a well deserved victory," said Royal, talking to the Nebraska squad in the Cornhusker dressing room following the game.

"It was a one-sided game and I just hope that we can get another shot at you."

Two field goals accounted for all the scoring in the first half. Texas' Billy Schott kicked a 22-yarder shortly after a Nebraska fumble in the first period and the Cornhuskers' Rich Sanger booted a 24-yarder after a weird fumble in which the ball bounced off a foot of Texas fullback Roosevelt Leaks and into the hands of Steve Manstedt.

Manstedt ran 62 yards to the Texas eight with the miscue.

With the score tied near the end of the half, Nebraska stormed to the Texas one and had a first down and goal from that point. But four times the Texas defense —with linebacker Wade Johnston leading the charge —repelled Nebraska.

The game might have turned out that note, and it seemed to have when the Longhorns came out in the second half to move briskly into Cornhusker territory.

It was then, however, that Thornton came up with his interception of an underthrown pass and it was all Nebraska from there.

Ritch Bahe scored one of the two second half touchdowns for Nebraska on a 12-yard run, and, shortly after the Cornhuskers recovered a Texas fumble at the Texas 19, Davis ran in from the three for the clinching score.

Davis gained 106 yards on 28 carries and Nebraska gained 240 yards on the ground against the normally stingy Texas defense. He was voted the game's outstanding offensive player and Johnston was picked as the leading defensive player.

Texas' running attack, however, was blunted. Leaks, the fourth leading ball carrier in the nation, could gain only 48 yards although he missed part of the first half with a bruised knee.

"My job was to take on (center Bill) Wyman and keep him off the line-backers," said Nebraska middle guard John Bell. "Wyman is a good center. He is the best kid I've played against all year."

"But in my opinion Wyman makes Leaks. Leaks does not make Wyman."

Third stakes win for Pierce

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Don Pierce continued his hot early-season pace Tuesday with a victory in the $34,450 El Monte Handicap at Santa Anita, his third stakes victory in six days.

The 36-year-old Pierce rode Dancing Papa to a two-length win over the sticky turf, which had absorbed more than a half-inch of rainfall Monday night. Dancing Papa paid $15.00.

Dancing Papa came to the front during the final eighth and left El Extrano behind. Dancing Papa's time for the 1-1/16 mile race was 1:45.

Dancing Papa returned $15.00, $6.00 and $3.60, while El Extrano paid $7.60 and $4.60 and third-finishing Wichiga Oil returned $3.60.

Racing resumes Friday at Santa Anita with the $25,000 added La Centinella Stakes.

the Player of the game, plus the running of halfback Archie Griffin and fullback Pete Johnson was too much for the Trojan defense.

Hayes' is also smiling about the future. Greene and Griffin are just completing their sophomore seasons while Johnson is a freshman.

The Buckeyes also took advantage of their breaks and displayed a stronger kicking game to maintain better field position.

Ohio State ended up with a 449-406 advantage in net yards, gaining 6.7 per play compared to USC's 4.9.

Greene completed six of eight passes for 129 yards and rushed for 45 more yards on seven carries.

Griffin led the ground attack with 149 yards on 22 carries with a 47-yard touchdown gallop icing the victory with 4:35 left in the game.

Johnson, who didn't see much action during the regular season, looked like the typical OSU bruising fullback in scoring the Buckeyes' first three touchdowns. He completed the night with 94 yards on 21 tries.

As a team, Ohio State rolled up 320 yards on the ground while USC was held to 167. Anthony Davis was the top Trojan runner with 74 yards on 16 carries while fullback Manfred Moore averaged seven yards a play in gaining 42 on six carries.

USC quarterback Pat Haden completed 21 of 39 passes for 229 yards. Former Bishop Amat High buddy John McKay Jr. was his favorite target with six receptions for 83 yards.

There were only three turnovers in the hard-hitting battle. USC picked off an Ohio State pass early in the game while the Buckeyes recovered a Trojan fumble in the closing minutes of the game. The key mistake came on an OSU fumble early in the third period.

After taking the second half kickoff, Ohio State marched down the field until Griffin lost control of the ball on the USC 15 with the Trojans' Monte Doris recovering. Otha Bradley made the hit on Griffin.

Hayes was beside himself on the sidelines.

USC took advantage of the turnover to take the lead with Haden driving the Trojans 84 yards on 14 plays with Anthony Davis scoring the touchdown on an one-yard plunge. The key play of the drive came when Rod McNeill fumbled the ball in the air at the OSU nine and Moore recovered on the three for a neat six-yard gain.

At that point, Hayes, turned into a cheerleader as he fired up his offensive unit.

It must have worked because Ohio State went 79 yards on five plays with Greene's 39-yard pass to tight end Fred Pagac on the Trojan four being the key gain. The Buckeyes, who were charged with a 15-yard holding penalty after the first offensive play, got going when Greene ran 16 yards and USC was called for a personal foul, giving the Buckeyes a first down.

Johnson completed the drive with a four-yard run for the touchdown but Charles Phillips blocked Blair Conway's extra point kick to leave the Trojans ahead, 21-20.

Ohio State freshman fullback Pete Johnson bursts through the USC line to score one of his three touchdowns in Buckeyes' 42-21 victory over the Trojans in the Rose Bowl Tuesday afternoon.

Penn State over LSU:

A 'bomb' breaks it up

MIAMI (UPI) — The Orange Bowl game between Penn State and Louisiana State matched two strong running teams, but it was a passing bomb to a receiver "with glue on his hands" that broke it open for the Nittany Lions.

Penn State, a fundamental rushing team, gained only 28 yards net on the ground against LSU's injury depleted defense but 157 yards in the air, 72 of them on the bomb to Chuck Herd in the second quarter that put the Lions in front.

LSU had 205 yards on the ground and only 69 passing, and 18 first downs to nine for Penn State. But to Bengal Coach Charlie McClendon, it wasn't only Herd that beat him, but also a defensive back, Jim Bradley, whose name he didn't know.

The highly keyed Bengals went 51 yards in nine plays with the opening kickoff to take a firm lead in the 40th annual Orange Bowl classic before 60,477 fans and a national television audience. Penn State came back with a 44-yard Chris Bahr field goal and then, in the second quarter, came the bomb to Herd.

Quarterback Tom Shuman ran one play into the line after the Lions took a punt, then dropped back and heaved a long, high pass down the middle to the six-foot, 201-pound Herd. It appeared the pass was overthrown by a foot or so, but Herd reached out with one hand, pulled it to his chest on the LSU 35-yard line and dashed into the end zone.

The Lions added another score on Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti's one-yard plunge on their last series of the first half.

Bahr kicked his second conversion and the scoring was over except for a two-point safety Penn State gave up to start the third quarter on a bad snap from center and a slip on the slick artificial turf by punter Brian Masella.

But before the first half ended, the Bengals went 75 yards in the final two minutes and almost got back into the ballgame.

On the last play of the half, Mike Miley threw a four-yard pass to Brad Davis at the Penn State five-yard line. But Bradley rushed in and tackled Davis and time ran out.

"It was supposed to be a play that would either score or stop the clock," McClendon said. "If he caught it, he would score; if he didn't, it would stop the clock. He caught it but he got nailed—and that man that got him wasn't even supposed to be anywhere near."

Of Herd's catch, McClendon could only say "Whew!" and drawl, "I believe he had glue on his hands. What was that youngster's name anyway? It was a perfectly executed pass."

"My best team," a happy Lions' Coach Joe Paterno said in the noisy Penn State dressing room. "They're the best balanced outfit I've ever had."

He let it out for the first time that Cappelletti had sprained an ankle in practice last Friday, but the big running back refused to use that as an excuse for averaging only 1.9 yards in 26 carries, compared to his regular season average of 5.3.

"Their defense just played well," he said. "Their linebackers were plugging the holes. I don't feel badly. I just tried to do the best I could."

Paterno agreed the LSU defense had his running game stopped cold. "We weren't making the holes," he said.

"I knew darned well we'd have to throw against LSU," he said. "They're so quick. We just had to adjust."

"I've just conducted my own poll—the Paterno poll—and Penn State is No. 1," he said.

Parseghian gambled to beat the Tide

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Notre Dame depended on guts and risks to score its 24-23 New Year's Eve Sugar Bowl win over Alabama and post a perfect 11-0 season, while Alabama's game plan was to stick to basic, hard-nosed football.

Both coaches recognized that Notre Dame quarterback Tom Clements' 35-yard pass from the end zone to Robin Weber in the final moments eliminated any hope of Alabama's winning the game Monday night, barring a late turnover or other unlikely development.

Fourth-ranked Notre Dame was leading 24-23 at the time and less than two minutes remained to be played.

"If we hadn't made the first down, Alabama would surely have been in field goal position with us punting from our end zone," said Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian Tuesday.

"The long pass right at the end beat us," said Paul "Bear" Bryant of Alabama, which finished the regular season 11-0 and was named national champion by the UPI Board of Coaches.

"When we had them backed up to the one yard line, if I'd been a betting man I'd have bet you anything we were going to win," Bryant said.

But Bryant was not aware that Parseghian had spotted a weakness in the Alabama defensive secondary that resulted from the Tide's emphasis on stopping the run.

"They were committing

Azusa hurler Weems dead in Venezuela

CARACAS (UPI) — Scheduled baseball activities were suspended Wednesday following the New Year's Day drowning of minor league pitcher Mark Weems.

Weems, 22, from Azusa, Calif., disappeared Tuesday while swimming at Patanemo Beach, 135 miles west of Caracas. Rescue workers have not yet been able to recover his body.

The Venezuelan winter league announced Tuesday that a scheduled game between the Caracas Lions and Magallanes—the team Weems played for—had been postponed.

Weems, who led the Venezuelan winter league as the most effective relief pitcher, belonged to the Baltimore Orioles organization. Last season he played with Rochester of the International League where he had a 9-7 record.

Eyewitnesses, including several other U.S. players, said that Weems disappeared under the waves at the beach and efforts to rescue him proved fruitless.

Three years ago, another American baseball player, Herman Hill, drowned at a beach not far from Patanemo.

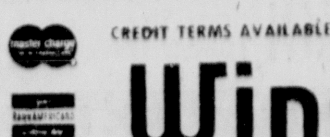

While playing with Magallanes, Weems worked in 26 games, saving 11 with a 2-1 won-loss record.

Former Pirate shortstop dies

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — James L. Smith, who was a Pittsburgh Pirates' shortstop when he was 18 and later played for the Cincinnati Reds in the 1919 World Series, died Tuesday at his home.

Smith, 78, was the father-in-law of former light heavyweight champion Billy Conn.

Funeral services will be held Friday morning at St. Rosalia's Church.

IROC drivers back for 500

RIVERSIDE — Three of the world's top race car drivers will find accommodations at Riverside Raceway this month when they are back for the 500-mile IROC race. The trio represented Grand National stock car racing in the IROC, which matched 12 drivers in identical Porsche Carrera sports cars.

Stock car drivers Richard Petty, David Pearson, and Bobby Allison are all entered in the January 20 Winston Western 500 at the Riverside road course where two months ago they competed in the all-Porsche International Race of Champions.

The trio represented Grand National stock car racing in the IROC, which matched 12 drivers in identical Porsche Carrera sports cars.

None of the three had ever driven that type of race car before and are looking forward to climbing back into their own 3,500-pound sedans.

"I enjoyed these three races once I got used to the little cars," says Pearson, "but I prefer my own kind of racing."

Pearson will drive the Wood Brothers 1971 Mercury in the Winston Western 500, Petty and Allison tied for ninth and were eliminated.

Pearson earned more than $200,000 driving the Wood Brothers Mercury in 1973 and was voted Martini & Rossi Driver of the Year.

It was the third year in a row that a Grand National driver won the coveted award. Petty won in 1971 and Allison in 1972.

Cragar's Five-Second Club highlights Grand Premiere

The upcoming third Annual Grand Premiere drag race set for this weekend at Irwindale Raceway promises to be anything but "just another drag race." While the line-up includes everything from dragsters to stockers, even the "Riviera Roadster" dragster, top billing must go to the "Cragar Five-Second Club." Consisting of eight drivers, all with AA/Fuel Dragsters, the select group provides the first-ever all-five-second showdown.

While one can speculate on any of the possible pairings, that mentioned most often is Don "Big Daddy" Garlits vs. Gary Beck, Beck of Edmond, Alberta, Canada, came out of nowhere to win last year's NHRA National Championship at Indianapolis. But that honor was tarnished slightly there by PRA "National Challenge" event which lured many would-be AAA/Fuel Dragster competitors to the Tulsa based "Challenge." The rest is legend, the PRA had the strongest field, including Garlits who was the driving force behind the rival drivers group. However, Beck repeated this year as National Champion at Indy. This time though, with the "2nd Annual National Challenge" staged the week prior to NHRA's Nationals, the field at Indianapolis boasted the strongest assembly of drag racing equipment ever assembled. Thus, Beck who won Indy '72 as a 35-year-old rookie, (he had been licensed only two weeks before the event) suddenly "was for real," as he made a shambles of the 73 field—including "Big Daddy."

The likeable Canadian's finest hour actually came in initial round when he lined up against Garlits. "Big Daddy" won the lane choice and selected the time which was producing elapsed times 10 second quicker than Beck's. Not only that, but Garlits combined a "hole shot" start with a time 6.13 elapsed time. But, Beck parlayed a fantastic 6.0-243 mph clocking in

Parker 400 field ready

PARKER, Ariz. — A huge entry field of 163 competitors has drawn starting positions for Mickey Thompson's SCORE International Parker 400 off-road race, to be held the weekend of Feb. 5-10, 1974, in the vicinity of Parker, Ariz.

The race, originally scheduled to run 500 miles, was shortened to 400 in the interest of fuel economy.

Included among early entrants are Baja 1000 winner Bobby Ferro of Sherman Oaks, Riverside Delco RV Spectacular champion Rick Mears of Bakersfield, 1972 Parker Dam 500 victor Drino Miller of Costa Mesa and two-time Mint 400 king Fritz Kroyer of Simi Valley.

Sunday's prices are $5.00 for adults, $2 children 8 to 12 years.

Irwindale Raceway is located in the heart of the San Gabriel Valley, at the Irwindale Ave. exits of the 210 Freeway, just one mile east of the 605.

Game hunting has related hazards

Hunting demands careful use of the gun to avoid crippling or fatal accidents. There are two other hazards associated with the catch whether or not you are going for a moose or a rabbit.

One hazard is called tularemia. The other is salmonella. Both are diseases that can infect human beings unless care is taken in skinning, dressing, handling, and cooking.

Tularemia is an infectious disease of wild animals. Man can contract it from bites of deer flies and wood ticks, or from skinning and dressing infected game, particularly raccoons, rabbits and muskrats, and from eating undercooked meat of any wild animal infected with tularemia. The bacteria can enter the body through a scratch or cut on the hand which is why hunters should wear gloves when handling or skinning wild game. One way to detect if an animal is infected with tularemia is to look for whitish spots on the animal's dark organs, such as liver or spleen.

The disease is a genuine hazard. In an infected person, symptoms begin to show within three to seven days, first as a severe headache, chills and fever. Swelling of the lymph glands in the arm pits, groin or neck may follow. An ulcer usually appears at the infection site. If this is diagnosed, a patient should be kept in bed and treated with antibiotics. The disease is rarely fatal, but if untreated, it can be, warns the New York State Department of Health. Therefore, all game (animals and fowl) requires careful cleaning to prevent an aftermath of food poisoning. cautions the Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Inspection Service warns that salmonellosis (Salmonella) is the poisoning most likely to develop from improperly handled wild game. It resembles flu in its symptoms: headache, vomiting, cramps, nausea, fever and diarrhea. These symptoms usually appear within 12 to 36 hours after eating the contaminated food and last usually from two to seven days. Salmonella is rarely fatal but it can be extremely dangerous for infants and the elderly.

Once the game is at home guard against any further danger of contamination.

Be sure hands, cutting boards, knives and other utensils are absolutely clean. Wash hands and kitchenware again in between handling raw and cooked meat with hot water and soap.

Once game is thoroughly cleaned, treat it as you would any other meat or poultry. Wrap loosely and store quickly in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Use within one or two days.

For longer storage wrap securely in air-tight freezer bags or foil and store immediately in the freezer. Set below zero.

To cook wild game: first thaw, then cook it immediately. Always cook it thoroughly since wild game has a greater chance of becoming contaminated than meat or fowl bought at your supermarket.

No budget pleaser; just good eating

Veal and mushrooms make a delicate and subtle combination for a pleasing, very special dish. This is not a budget recipe but is something extra for those who want to splurge—to impress guests or a very special individual. Either canned or fresh mushrooms are suitable in the sauce.

VEAL MARSALA WITH MUSHROOMS

- 1 pound fresh mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 ounces each)
- sliced mushrooms
- 2 pounds boneless leg of veal, cut  $\frac{1}{2}$ -inch thick
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup lemon juice
- $\frac{1}{2}$  teaspoon salt
- $\frac{1}{4}$  teaspoon ground black pepper
- $\frac{1}{2}$  cup flour
- 6 tablespoons oil, divided
- 8 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
- $\frac{1}{4}$  cup minced onion
- 1 cup dry marsala
- 1 cup beef broth
- $1\frac{1}{2}$  cups peeled, seeded and diced tomatoes
- 1 teaspoon tarragon leaves, crumbled

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. Pound veal between 2 pieces waxed paper with wood mallet or edge of plate until 1/4-inch thick. Combine lemon juice, salt and black pepper. Brush on both sides of veal. Dredge meat with flour, carefully shaking off excess. In a large skillet heat 2 tablespoons oil and 2 tablespoons butter.

Add veal, a few pieces at a time. Cook over moderate heat until brown, about 3 minutes on each side. As the meat browns place in a shallow ovenproof casserole. Add additional oil and butter to skillet as needed, reserving 2 tablespoons butter to be added when all the meat is browned.

To the heated butter stir in reserved mushrooms and onion; saute until golden about 5 minutes. Remove mushrooms and onion to a bowl. Stir marsala and broth into skillet; bring to boiling point; reduce heat and simmer for 2 minutes, stirring to loosen particles on bottom of pan. Add tomato, tarragon and reserved mushroom mixture.

Remove from heat; season with additional salt and pepper if necessary. Pour over meat. Cover. Bake in a preheated 350°-degree oven 20 to 30 minutes. To serve, arrange meat down center of serving platter. Spoon sauce over meat and garnish with minced parsley, if desired, and serve with rice or noodles. Makes 6 portions.

ORANGE REFRIGERATOR COOKIES

Sift together 3 cups unsifted all-purpose flour, 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon baking soda. Cream well 1 cup butter or margarine. Add 1 1/2 cups firmly packed brown sugar, and beat until fluffy. Add 1 egg, beating well. Stir in 2 tablespoons fresh grated orange peel. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture alternately with 2 tablespoons fresh orange juice, mixing well. Stir in 1 cup chopped walnuts. Chill for 30 minutes. Divide dough in half. Place each half on a piece of waxed paper and shape into a roll about 14 inches long. Chill several hours or overnight. Cut 1/4-inch-thick slices and bake on greased cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 10 minutes.

Ailing youngsters need coaxing

So one of the youngsters is sick-a-bed and not up to eating regular meals. You may have to do a little pampering and coaxing to get him or her to take liquids and nourishment. Calories he can make up later, but fluids he cannot. See that your young patient sips something as often and in as many ways as you can skillfully devise. Try these for starters: crushed ice to suck; fruit and vegetable juices of all kinds; bouillon, broth or light soups; lemonade, hot or cold, and ginger ale; milk and milk shakes, with or without ice cream; fruit-flavored gelatin, jelled or liquid; and hot all boxed up from his favorite drive-in. FLAVORED MILKS For each serving, add one of the following to a tall glass. Fill with fortified milk and stir. 2 tablespoons caramel syrup. 1 tablespoon chocolate syrup and 1 tablespoon crunchy peanut butter. 1 tablespoon honey, 1 tablespoon grape juice, orange juice, lemonade or limeade concentrate. 1 to 2 tablespoons chocolate syrup, cocoa mix or ice-cream topping. 1/2 banana, mashed. 2 tablespoons maple-flavored syrup (sprinkle with cinnamon after stirring). FLAVORED MILK SHAKES Add 1 scoop vanilla ice cream to any of the flavored milks (above). Mix in blender on high speed until smooth.

SAUCES

Frozen vegetables and prepared dishes are boons to the busy homemaker. However, foods that have seasonings such as butter added and prepared sauces are more expensive than those that are frozen without these extras. They do add a few cents to each serving. It is less expensive to add your own seasoning such as spices and herbs and make your own sauces for vegetable dishes if you insist upon using frozen vegetables.

The Romeros' program will include pieces representative of typical Spanish life scenes such as a wedding and the annual harvest, the Tellman Concerto, and other works.

Tickets are available in the Community Services Office. Checks should be made out to the college and mailed to Community Services.

Will history label Kissinger greatest diplomatic juggler?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is engaged in what many diplomats consider one of the greatest diplomatic juggling acts in history.

He is moving simultaneously on several fronts in an effort to solve critical international issues, some of them seemingly insoluble, which trouble the United States.

While working to bring about peace in the Middle East, Kissinger is also trying to patch up Washington's differences with the NATO alliance, most of whose members still refuse to support U.S. Mideast policy.

He is working on methods to achieve a short-term solution to the energy problem by ending the Arab oil embargo while, at the same time he tries to avoid damaging the detente with Russia, which was the country that persuaded the Arabs to use their petroleum as a political weapon.

Kissinger's difficulties are compounded by suspicions among the NATO allies that the Soviet-American agreements to consult and cooperate on all nuclear age dangers have already pulled the rug out from under the western alliance.

So great is Kissinger's repute, as a result of the 1972 Peking and Moscow "successes" that even some who should know better seem to expect him to produce miracles.

The problems Kissinger struggles with did not all erupt suddenly or without warning. A number of these problems were predicted or predictable over the past 25 years but either ignored or misinterpreted.

Kissinger's anger at the failure of most NATO members to support U.S. policy in the Middle East is understandable from a nationalistic point of view. However, Europeans remember that it was the United States which — for the first 15 years of NATO's existence — insisted the alliance should not concern itself with anything outside its own European territory and particularly should not meddle in the Middle East.

The United States suddenly changed its tune in 1965, when it tried unsuccessfully to enlist NATO support for Washington's war in Vietnam. In other words, the U.S. has been on both sides of that question.

So far as concerns the desire of NATO members to formulate their own policy, which has led to considerable heartburn in official circles here, the allies can point to the fact that in previous years the United States urged them to do just this and serve as a major force in a world of polycentric power.

The energy crisis, which now is clipping the wings and chilling the bones of Americans and Europeans, was very accurately predicted by a presidential commission under President Truman. The commission report said the squeeze would come in about 20 years, hitting it almost right on the nose.

What is not clear at this time is whether Russia is sufficiently interested in preserving good relations with Washington to help Kissinger solve some of his problems. Any sympathy for the United States there might be in the Kremlin undoubtedly has been somewhat diminished by Congressional refusal to approve the Soviet-American trade agreement unless Russia pledges not to restrict the emigration of Jews — a question which Russia considers a matter of domestic policy.

A brief list of some of the difficulties Kissinger faces demonstrates that in addition to his undoubted skill, he's going to need a lot of luck to make substantial progress on even a few fronts.

Photographed at Owachoma Bridge, Natural Bridges National Monument, Utah. Outside Utah, other natural bridges are also found at Natural Bridge, Virginia; in Mt. Rainier National Park, Washington; and in Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming.

NATURAL BRIDGE

Some bridges are for tourists. Most bridges built by men are to bring people together and ease the flow of goods.

That's how the Progress-Bulletin fits in, too.

Our main role, of course, is to help bridge the public information gap. Facts, Analysis, Opinion. We take that part of our job as a public trust. It has to be the first task of any serious newspaper.

But another vital role of the Progress-Bulletin is to bring sellers and buyers together.

Each day, hundreds, often thousands, of local buyers find their way to local bargains by first checking through our columns of display and classified ads.

If you're a tourist, we suggest the natural bridges country of Utah, Virginia, Washington or Wyoming for an outing. But if you are a citizen in need of information, a buyer in search of a bargain, or a seller looking for an audience, we suggest the Progress-Bulletin as the natural bridge around the Pomona Valley Area for bringing people and information together and easing the flow of goods.

AND . . . OUR TOLL IS LOW, TOO

No matter which kind of traffic you may have in mind . . . whether you want to reach someone with a bargain, or someplace for the news . . . you'll find our "toll" is low. A dime will open the way at any newsstand. Or, better yet, $3.00 for the Progress-Bulletin by the month. Just fill in the subscription blank found below on this page, and send it in.

Advertisers of course, pay by the column inch according to the message load.
